The British mail steamer Africa, from Liverpool [illegible] morning of Saturday, the 7th, arrived at [illegible]

[illegible] Parliament, on the night of the 6th, [illegible] of the Exchequer brought forward his [illegible] namely, a reduction of the income-tax for the year April 1857 to 1858 from 1s. 4d. to 7d. and 5d. per £; also, beginning at 1s. 7d. per lb. duty on tea to remain permanent 1s. 2d., and precisely the same duty on sugar. These changes were carried by a majority of 63. These changes take effect from 5th April, 1857, to 5th April, 1858.

Lord PALMERSTON has been invited to become member for the city of London; Liverpool has sent him [illegible]

A private telegraphic dispatch from Konigsberg, dated March 9, and published in the Paris correspondence of the London Times, says:

"The last accounts from Teheran, by way of Russia, state that the Shah had ratified the treaty of commerce concluded at Constantinople between FERUK KHAN and the representative of the United States of America. The rumor is, that it authorizes the latter Power to establish a diplomatic mission at Teheran, and consulates at Tabreez, Tauris, and Bushire. Citizens of the United States, as regards their commerce, are to be treated as those of the most favored nations. An American agent, Col. SHUMAKER, had [illegible] to negotiate a similar treaty."

The French Government is said to have received [illegible] from China, which states that the Governor of Ho Tieu had seized the central opium depôt on Ho, 6, the property belonging to Englishmen and the East India Company.

It is said that, in consequence of the last news from China, the French fleet in those seas, under the command of Admiral RIGAULT DE GENOUILLY, will be reinforced by three ships of the line.

A telegraphic dispatch from Plymouth in the London Post, dated March 6, says:

"Orders have been received here to-day to prepare with the utmost speed the Euryalus, Highflyer, Himalaya, Cyclops, Niagara, &c., for the Chinese station."

Orders had also been received in Plymouth on the 6th, that 1,000 marines should hold themselves in readiness to embark for China.

The London Advertiser believes it is correctly inferred that Sir John Bowring has been recalled from the situation he fills as Governor of Hong Kong.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times, writing on the 4th inst., says:

"A private letter here from St. Petersburg announces that it is known in that city by special courier that the Governor of Russian Asia had dispatched a column of troops towards Kiakhta, on the frontiers of China. It is added, that this measure has been adopted in agreement with the Court of Pekin."

The first conference on the Neufchatel question met in Paris on the 5th of March. The Paris corresponden of the London Times says:

"The intelligence communicated yesterday with reference to the growing willingness of the King of Prussia to agree to certain concessions is confirmed. Whether he will persevere in that disposition it is difficult to say. The Swiss, on their side, will also be expected to make concessions, so that by this simultaneous movement towards each other the ground of difference will be narrowed. With respect to the Plenipotentiaries, I have to say that Dr. KERN will represent the Confederation, and not Col. BARNAVE, as I have stated, whether a Swiss Plenipotentiary will be admitted. The Conference will consist of the representatives of the Powers who were parties to the protocol of 1852, including Prussia. It was at first said that both Prussia and Switzerland would be excluded, but the present arrangement is as I have just stated."

The Prussian Ministry has been defeated by 39, on the Divorce bill.

The Spanish Government had determined to send off at once 2,000 men to Cuba, (without counting the [illegible] which are being prepared,) to enable complete reparation to be obtained from Mexico.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

LONDON, Friday night, March 6, 1857.

Matters are in a most extraordinary state here. My last letter would have prepared you for a possible, though not very probable, defeat of the Palmerston Ministry; but it could not have prepared you for the condemned Minister's defiance of that defeat, and his persistance in the policy stigmatized by the very branch of the Legislature that specially controls the expenditure of the Executive, and, therefore, practically, has all questions of peace or war in its hands, saying that it alone has the granting or withholding of the supplies. Both these phenomena have happened. Ministers have been declared, by a majority of 16, in a very full house, and after a most protracted and [illegible] debate of four nights, to be pursuing an unfortunate, immoral, impolitic and wholly indefensible and indefinable war in China. Instead of resigning, at of this early stage of the session, it would have been but natural and becoming that they should have done, and allowing the Queen an opportunity of choosing other advisers, Ministers—that is, the Minister—for there is really but one—laugh at the vote, and announce a dissolution.

COBDEN, menaced with expulsion, banishes the thought. But before being banished, or rather dissolved, the Commons ask, What of their vote?—what of their censure?—how does the Minister mean to shape his policy with regard to it?—how carry on affairs in the East for the next three or four months, till a new House of Commons shall be ready to exact an account of his stewardship in the interim? The Minister himself says nothing, but he puts up one of his satellites to say that war steamers and vessels of various kinds are hurrying to the scene of action, to act with vigor. Such answer gives no satisfaction—and various leading members of the Opposition, COBDEN, BENTINCK, GLADSTONE, and others, repeat the inquiry, and call aloud for explanation. Still PALMERSTON is silent, but destroy another of his subordinates to say that the lives of British subjects shall be protected in China, and that there shall be no relaxation of vigor and energy in securing that paramount object. Again other and not less eminent members of the Opposition, Lord JOHN RUSSELL, Sir JAS. GRAHAM, and Sir FRANCIS BARING, exclaim that this is no answer, and demand to be informed if Lord PALMERSTON means to execute his policy, to recall the fleet and expedition, Sir JOHN BOWRING, Sir C. COCKBURN, and others, to give effect to the resolution of the Commons of England, solemnly chalenged to the arbitrament. Lord PALMERSTON, in the coolest and politest, but at the same time ministerially supercilious manner, made answer that he meant nothing of the sort. The House had taken its course; he had taken his polite leave. He knew what his would be; it would be just as it was. He did not know what there would be, nor did he much care. It would be time enough to resolve at the end of next May, by which he really means December, for he will delay till the last moment, and well they know it, for they know their man, and, knowing, dread him. And scarcely have they seen

This, then, is the real state of the case. England is as completely at the mercy of one man as in France. The panegyrist of the Parisian coup d'état of '51, has enacted a like performance of his own in 1857. What is the difference? None, save that free institutions are made the instruments of subjugation in one instance, and despotic in the other. But is not England a commanding party? And was not France? Indeed there is this difference in favor of the latter, that whereas Louis NAPOLEON had accomplices and abettors, Lord PALMERSTON has none, and while BONAPARTE had no opponent of the least weight, he occupies the army of the greatest weight. Not one single man of parliamentary or public eminence is found on his side; nearly all the independence, all the ability, is found arrayed against him; yet he feels not that he is the victim of a conspiracy, and calls on the country to stand to him, for its sake and his own. And will the country do so? That is just the question all our wise heads are cudgelling their brains to find out at this present moment. A very strong current of feeling is in his favor thus far. John Bull's proverbial weakness for a lord, is doubly strengthened towards a tyrannous lord, that is if the tyrant be but a silken one, and like the despot of old, cover his sword with flowers.

If the Duke of WELLINGTON had but condescended to conceal his contempt for the British public, or even to mitigate the scorn of its utterance, he would have been deified. However, as it was, he could not escape the terrible martyrdom of the adoration of his flunky countrymen, that is, of nine hundred and ninety-nine thousand nine hundred, out of every million of the British population during nearly two generations. Do what he would—spurn, kick, cuff, laugh at them, they would still fall down before their farraginous Juggernaut, and solicit the privilege of being crushed beneath his heel. Occasionally, it is true, turning upon it, as is the nature of other crawling things under similar circumstances. Now, PALMERSTON is a thoroughly Wellington stamp of man, only he doesn't stamp. He coaxes and cajoles and again bullies and scolds, but always contrives to win his way into a secure position before he shows tempter. WELLINGTON never in his life spoke to a newspaper man, and regarded the press, as it were a mad dog, or, at least, a dog that might become mad, and should therefore be muzzled to prevent mischief. PALMERSTON, on the contrary, though with just the same appreciation of the fourth estate as the Duke, has always made the most of it; always had a whole society of pension hymning his praise, or, which comes to the same thing, lampooning his opponents, and not unfrequently doing vice versa, abusing himself, and lauding them on some trumpery extraneous point, so as to throw dust into the public eye, and often into the eyes of the already poor blind tools he hoodwinks and works with. He has gone on in the latter direction for many years, elaborating his materials as he proceeded; till, now, the free and independent myriad voice and journalistic organ of the United Kingdom cuckoos his behests almost as it were with one pipe, and the unanimity is wonderful to all but the bellows-blower himself, who, having raised the wind, sees no necessity for being surprised at the inflated utterance afterwards. His typographic craftsmen are studded all over the globe, as the experienced WEKOFF testifies, and as others of less practical knowledge might bear witness. In the ministry, if not in the Cabinet itself, there are professional periodical writers, and it need not be said which side they espouse, nor how little harmony there is between the present views and the past opinions of these pirats, some of which once called for the head of the statesman as a traitor-knave whom they now uphold as absolutely essential to preserve the British lion from instantaneous decapitation.

How will the elections go? That is the all-absorbing consideration. Parties are not pitted agains each other as formerly, and therefore there is no drawing the broad distinctions there once was. It is all shades and all sections of all parties against PALMERSTON, and what that is nobody knows, though assuredly it is not for want of acquaintance with the man representing it, if not the thing represented. But the man and the thing may prove more than a match for all the other men and things, though these include the Derby-Disraeli party, the Peelites, Cobdens and the peace men, ROEBUCK and the belligerent Radicals, and many varieties of subordinate nondescripts, saying nothing of Lord JOHN RUSSELL, whose seat for the City of London is menaced by PALMERSTON himself—that is, by his friends—but it is not at all probable that there would be any actual contest between the pair, as P. will abide by his snug borough of Tiverton for the remainder of his days, be they long or short in the land, and they cannot be very long now. The puzzle is to know what programme will be put forth. He has opposed reform very lately. He has demanded high estimates, and he is aggressive on other States. How such a man can hope for support from the friends of his former liberal friends, from the friends of peace, retrenchment and reform, it is not easy to surmise; but, nevertheless, it is absolutely certain that he will obtain very great support from these quarters, sufficient at least for some time, to prevent any violent practical resentment towards a usurpation unparalleled since the days of WOOLSEY, and scarcely exceeded in actual power by CROMWELL. One ingredient in his popularity that his press is endeavoring to work for him, is the joy his supposed downfall is supposed to create among the continental despotisms, Rome, Naples, Parma, Berlin, and divers of the Russianized Germanic principalities. The electric telegraph has supplied some and suggested more of these reports since the division on Tuesday night was known; but, unluckily, the hacks of the treasury have outrun discretion in this particular, for they admit that the French funds have not at all been affected by the news of the Emperor's very dear friend having been snubbed by the House of Commons; and, secondly, that that exemplary exponent of free and enlightened administration, the Emperor of Austria, really is grieved at PALMERSTON's mishap.

Had the Atlantic cable been laid down, we should have known by this time what you think of the occurrence in America, but Sir C. WOOD, our First Lord of Admiralty, to-night, in the House of Commons, endeavored to anticipate the impression by a very labored description of the exceeding cordiality that subsists between the two Governments. The occasion for this was some question put as to the rumored breaking up of the restored Resolute, which Sir CHARLES emphatically contradicted, saying that every care was being taken of the vessel, and all that was being done to her, in regard to the removal of spars and fittings, was with a view to her more effectual preservation. He renewed his expressions of regard for the American Union, and towards your Minister here, who has again been a most constant attendant at the debates of the week, as has also been the ebonized representative of the Majesty of Hayti, the propinquity of the two plenipotentiaries giving rise to certain comical commentaries among our scribbling wits, whereof, however, the least said the better.

But the mention of Mr. DALLAS' name, and the recent reports as to the reception of the treaty negotiated by him here, suggests a word or two on a matter that is not a little perplexing in this capital just now. An "American Citizen," writing in the Times, today, recapitulates the facts at some length. His arguments may be thus summed up: The confusion which exists in the public mind in respect to the recently concluded Central American treaties is scarcely to be wondered at, when we recollect that Lord DERBY, in commenting on the Queen's speech, confounded the convention with Honduras with the United States treaty, until set right by Lord CLARENDON. It was explained that the treaty with the United States had reference only to the dispute with respect to the protection of the Mosquito Territory. The clause relating to Slavery, which many supposed to be one of the objections urged by the Senate of the United States against the treaty concluded by Mr. DALLAS, forms no part of that document, and is in no way before that body for consideration. It constitutes part of the convention with Honduras, and is a matter between that Republic and the British Government alone. The most that can be said against this clause is, that it was unnecessary, since Slavery does not exist in Honduras, and there is no probability of its introduction. But the right and competence of Honduras and Great Britain to make stipulations on this or any other matters is undoubted, and their action is altogether beyond the sphere of the Senate of the United States. The advocates of Slavery will find sufficient employment in preventing similar clauses from being introduced into the constitutions of all the new States which may seek admission into the Union, without extending their solicitude to the relations which may be established between foreign and independent States. Of one thing the public may rest assured, that no opposition to the adjustment of the Central American difficulties will gain any strength in the Senate or among the people of the United States by calling up the Slavery question in connection with it; if the treaty concluded by Lord CLARENDON and Mr. DALLAS should not be ratified, its failure will rest on grounds more tenable than the Slavery clause in the Convention with Honduras.

You will best appreciate how far this reasoning suits the actual truth of the matter, apropos of which it may not be irrelevant to inform you that your late friend, CHARTERIS, has been sent to a lonic that has long been synonymous with a very unromantic place in British ears, namely, to Hanover—a mission of very inferior grade in every way to that of Washington, the salary being but £2,000 a year, but still out of all proportion to the deserts, much less to the discretion of the recipient. What we want of a Minister at all at Hanover is one of those mysteries this country has never been able to make out, and has at last seemingly given up endeavoring to do so.

City parties connected with America are a good deal surprised to-day at the failure of the large emigration agency house of TRAINS, at Liverpool, more especially as it was understood that they were about to extend their machinery this year to meet a large deputation of Continental foreigners.

The Defeat of the British Government in Parliament.

Important Ministerial Explanations.

HOUSE OF LORDS, Thursday, March 6.

Earl GRANVILLE then rose and said,—I think it is important to give your Lordships some information with regard to the course Her Majesty's Government intend to pursue, in consequence of a certain event of having occurred in another place. Her Majesty's Government having found themselves there in a minority, the usual course under such circumstances would have been to tender their resignations to Her Majesty. After calm consideration of all the circumstances of the case, they have come to the opinion that it is not their duty so to do. Considering that in the same place, on a most important question in relation to the finances of the country, they found themselves supported by a large majority, and that they received support, for which they are grateful, in your Lordships' House on the China question itself, looking, also, at the composition of the House of Commons, by which it does not appear clear that any strong Government can be formed in its present state, and considering, further, that during the five years existence of the present Parliament there have been three different Governments, and the nation has passed from a state of peace to a state of war and again to a state of peace, Her Majesty's Government think it will be for the advantage of the country and for the public interest that reference should be made to the country to ascertain what its wishes are as to the future. [Hear, hear.] Without going into more detail, I assume for adopting this course, all I have to add is that Her Majesty's Government will only ask the sanction of both Houses to measures of a temporary character, so as to enable the appeal to be made as soon as possible, with the view of recalling Parliament as soon as a new Parliament can be collected, and then ascertaining what the wishes of the country are as to what parties shall rule the nation. [Hear.] I cannot anticipate that in that course they will meet with any opposition; at all events, I submit the reasonableness and fairness of ascertaining what is the real feeling of the country. [Hear, hear.]

Earl GREY—I have certainly no wish to raise discussion on this occasion, but it occurs to me that there is an omission in the statement which the noble Earl has just made. The House of Commons has condemned the policy of Her Majesty's Government, not upon a legislative question, but upon the highest question of executive policy with which they have to deal. It is upon a question of peace or war. [Hear, hear.] The House of Commons has come to a resolution, which I am perfectly in order in quoting from the votes laid on your lordships' table:

"That this House considers that the papers which have been laid upon the table fail to establish satisfactory grounds for the violent measures resorted to at Canton in the late affair of the Arrow."

Consider, my lords, what is the serious effect of that resolution. It is this—that the country is now virtually engaged in a war which has been branded as unjust by the House of Commons. [Hear, hear.] The affairs of England are intrusted in that country to the management of a person who, by a vote of the House of Commons, is branded with having without due justification entered on these violent measures. Now, my lords, having just heard that the end of May is the earliest period when her Majesty's Government anticipate another House of Commons can be called together, I wish to know whether in the interval, in which events of tremendous importance may take place, the policy branded by the House of Commons is to be pursued, and whether this treatment of these most important questions which must arise in China is still to be committed to the hands of the man whose moral authority in that country is, I say, destroyed by the vote which has taken place. [Hear, hear.] My lords, it appears to me impossible that in the face of the vote recently given by the House of Commons, the policy which has hitherto been pursued can be persevered in, or the affairs of England in Canton be intrusted to the hands in which they are at present placed. I submit that if the two Houses are called on to give those facilities which are expected by her Majesty's Government, in order that they may make the appeal to the country which they desire—if we are to give those facilities which I need not tell your lordships either House has the power of refusing—we are entitled to satisfaction on this point from Her Majesty's Government, and I can venture to say what, in my opinion, they ought to do. I think they ought at once and forthwith to recall Sir J. BOWRING. [Hear, hear.] I think they ought to send out a person of high character, in whom discretion and judgment great confidence can be placed, with very wide discretionary powers, to bring the war, if possible, to a conclusion. I think they ought to do, what I have no doubt they have done already—namely, taken all the measures within their power to protect the lives and property of Her Majesty's subjects in China. [Hear, hear.] But I say this is, of all things, most essential, that the individual who has brought the country into its present critical position and involved it in hostilities should not remain intrusted with the high duties of Her Majesty's plenipotentiary. Certainly, unless Her Majesty's Government are prepared to give satisfaction on that point, I think it is the duty of this and the other House, by humble address to Her Majesty, to express the wish, I am sorry to say, they must feel, and if no other member of your lordships' House more able to undertake the task present himself, I shall be prepared to move such an address. [Hear.]

Earl GRANVILLE—I could perfectly understand the question which has been put by the noble Earl being put in another place, where the resolution has been affirmed; but I do not see the same propriety in the noble Earl's putting the question in your lordship's assembly, when, after full discussion, you have come, by a large majority, to a contrary opinion. [Cheers.] At the same time, I should be most unwilling to refuse any general information as to the course of the Government which it is in my power to give. I can only assure your lordships that even before the close of the debate we had taken into our deepest consideration the best means of determining the present unsatisfactory state of relations between China and this country. We do not consider that the House of Commons intended by that resolution to indicate that we should refrain from taking every necessary step for the defence of the lives and property of British subjects in China, or that we should patch up matters in a rash and precipitate manner, without reference to the position of things at the time. We think we act in consonance with the decision of the House of Commons, though not admitting its justice, if we take every step which, in our judgment, is best calculated to settle the question as a whole, and that we shall not incur blame by so doing either from your lordships or from the other House, even in its present state—still less, we hope, when Parliament is reelected after a dissolution. [Hear, hear.]

HOUSE OF COMMONS....Thursday, March 6.

Lord PALMERSTON rose, in a crowded House, and amid loud and repeated cheers, to make the eagerly expected ministerial statement. He said: Mr. Speaker, in order to regulate that which I am about to say, and to put it in the power of any honorable member who has anything to say on this subject to address the House, I intend to conclude the statement which I am about to make by a formal motion, that this House do now adjourn. The House must naturally expect that after what happened on Tuesday night I should state to the House the course which upon due reflection Her Majesty's Government mean to pursue. Under ordinary circumstances, after a vote by which the House by a majority—whatever the amount of it might be—affirmed that which many at least who voted considered to be a vote of censure upon the conduct of the Government, there could hardly be an alternative left to the Government as to the course to be pursued. The natural course would be that they should tender to their sovereign a resignation of their offices, and leave to those who had obtained that majority the task of conducting the affairs of the country. But the present case seemed to us to be of so peculiar a character that we have not thought it our duty to submit to our sovereign a resignation of our offices. [Loud cheers.] There is another course which the Government under such circumstances might constitutionally adopt, and that is the course which we have deemed it our duty to pursue. We have deemed it our duty to advise the Crown at the earliest period at which the state of the business of the House will permit us to call upon the constituencies of the country to exercise that privilege which the Constitution places in their hands. [Cheers.] I say the circumstances are peculiar, because, while on the one hand, looking to the simple result of that last debate we might say that we had lost the confidence of this House, yet, on the other hand, looking to the divisions which took place very shortly before upon questions involving very important positions of the policy of the Government, the result was of a very different character. [Hear.] And I feel myself free to say that none of those who concurred in the vote of Tuesday night made it understood that that vote was not to be considered as implying a want of confidence on their part in Her Majesty's Government. [Hear, hear.] But it is vain to deny that that vote would render it very difficult, if not unseemly, for the Government with regard to which it was passed, to undertake the conduct of the business in the ordinary manner during the remainder of a long session. [Hear, hear.] Moreover, the state of parties which that vote indicated appears to me to show—connecting it with the various votes and fluctuating opinions of the House with regard to those majorities on former occasions—that it would be extremely difficult for any Government—whether that which now exists, or that which might be formed, however efficient it might be—and I add, not merely by way of compliment, but as merely stating the truth, that that Government which might be formed by a combination of parties (using that expression not by way of taunt) would be very efficient to carry on the business of the country throughout a session in the state of feeling which at present happens to prevail in this House. I will not allude to the very strongly marked difference of opinion between the two Houses of Parliament upon the question which was put to issue on Tuesday night. I do not think that would be a sufficient reason, but still it is an element to show what various opinions exist in regard to the present Administration as compared with that which might be its successor. This Parliament is now in its fifth session, and, measuring its duration by what it has seen, it is a very old Parliament, for it has witnessed more important events than it has fallen to the lot of most Parliaments to see. It has seen three Administrations [a slight laugh]—the Administration which called it together, the Administration which followed, and the Administration which now sits on these benches. It has seen the transition from a state of profound peace to a great European war; and it has seen the transition from a great European war to the fortunate restoration of European peace. Therefore, as concerns the events of which it has been a spectator, this Parliament has done as much as could be expected to fall to the lot of one which had completed its full term of existence. If the state of business would have admitted of an immediate appeal to our constituents, that is the course which would have been most proper and most seemly, [cheers,] but the state of public business does not admit of the adoption of such a course. We have as yet voted nothing upon the estimates for the public service; we have arranged nothing in regard to the taxes, some of which require to be remodeled; we have not passed a Mutiny Act, and that in ordinary cases would expire before it would be possible for Parliament to reassemble and provide for the maintenance and discipline of the army. The course which I humbly beg to propose to this House, therefore, is, that we should do on the present occasion that which has been done on former and similar occasions, that which was done in spirit during the Administration of Lord DERBY, when it was announced that there was to be a dissolution—that the House should content itself with those provisional and temporary measures which may be necessary to provide for the public service until the earliest period at which a new Parliament can assemble. We had proposed to arrange certain taxes for three years; we shall now propose to determine them for only one year. There are some taxes with regard to which it would be very embarrassing to commence to have them settled for the short a period, but we do not think that a Parliament which is about to be dissolved could properly be called upon to fix them for a period longer than the year for which provision is to be made. [Hear, hear.] Upon the same principle, we shall propose to the House to vote sums on account of the estimates for only a portion of the year, and to pass a Mutiny act for a similar period, thus leaving the new Parliament, which may probably assemble somewhat towards the end of May, free to deal with all these great matters according to its discretion. I should hope, Sir, that this House will see that the course which we are prepared to adopt is one which is in accordance with the principles of the Constitution, [Hear, hear,] and that gentlemen will therefore place no obstructions in the way of our arriving at a time when fresh elections may take place, by interposing any unnecessary difficulties in the way of the adoption of the course by which we propose to divide for the public service. [Hear, hear.] We shall abstain from proposing anything but that which is necessary for this purpose. There are many gentlemen who entertain strong opinions upon many subjects which they would wish to bring under discussion in this House, but they will, I think, feel that steps of importance cannot probably be taken by a Parliament situated as this House of Commons will now necessarily be. I therefore hope that the same honorable forbearance which has been shown by former Parliaments under similar circumstances will be exhibited by this one. There is this to be said, that now at least the country will have a really fair choice between two different Administrations—a choice which, without meaning to say anything offensive to any party in this House—I think I may say it could not have had, at least not to the same degree, under that combination that took place which has led to the state of things in which the Government now finds itself. As I said before, I am stating a fact without making the slightest imputation upon those who have formed that combination; but I say that so far it may be an advantage to the country—it will have the opportunity of choosing between two different efficient Administrations. That, also, is a ground which the more justifies us in throwing upon the country the responsibility of determining what Administration shall be intrusted with the conduct and management of the affairs of the nation. [Cheers.] The noble lord concluded by moving the adjournment of the House.

Mr. DISRAELI thought the course proposed by Lord PALMERSTON would be most to the public advantage, and he would, he said, give every facility in his power to the progress of business. He believed that the appeal to the country would prove of great benefit to the public interests, and he trusted members would be returned with more definite opinions.

Mr. COBDEN observed that the House on Tuesday had come to a solemn vote which had been entirely ignored by Lord PALMERSTON, and he asked him what he was going to do in consequence of that vote? The Executive Government had no right to hold office unless they were prepared to carry it out. If any danger to the British residents in China was to be apprehended from the vote, the first consideration of the Government ought to be the safety of our fellow-countrymen, and they should send a competent person by the next steamer, armed with full power to supersede all existing British authority in China, and to act according to circumstances. If Lord PALMERSTON did not intend to take this course, what other course would he take? A new Parliament could not assemble until the end of May, and what would be doing in China in the meanwhile?

Mr. S. HERBERT inquired whether the Government were going to continue the war for the same object—namely, the entry of Sir JOHN BOWRING into Canton, and whether the conduct of affairs there was to be left in the hands of a man who, in the opinion of the House, had brought about the present dangerous state of things?

Sir G. GREY denied that the object of the war was to obtain an entry into Canton. The Government, he said, had directed its most serious attention to the existing state of things in China, and would take every precaution to protect British lives and property; but they did not intend to send out civil and military officers to act in accordance with the views of Mr. COBDEN, who had no right to assume that they had any other intention than to endeavor to place our relations with China on a proper footing. To accomplish this object, they would employ the means best calculated, in their opinion, to do so; and he trusted that the House would leave the honor and the interests of the country in their hands.

Lord J. RUSSELL considered that the House was entitled to ask for an explanation of the policy intended to be pursued during the next three months after it had determined that conduct which had been approved by the Government was worthy of its censure. Ministers should state the terms that were to be asked of China—what, in fact, was the object o the hostilities. He declared the charge against him of combination with the Conservative Party to be false and calumnious. The concurrence, he said, was on the merits of the question; and he believed that no vote would confer more honor than that of Tuesday upon the Parliament of 1852.

Mr. ROEBUCK protested against the statement of Lord PALMERSTON that his vote was the result of a combination, by which he meant conspiracy of parties.

Mr. GLADSTONE asked, if we were not making war to obtain the admission of Mr. JOHN BOWRING into Canton, for what were we at war? Three months would elapse before Parliament could reassemble, and upon whose policy were the measures in China to be carried on during that interval? The House was bound, he said, to require an answer to this question. It was not right to vote supplies for carrying on a war which had been condemned by Parliament; yet it had been distinctly indicated that it would be carried on just as if the resolution had never been adopted. Lord PALMERSTON had talked of a combination; when had it before happened that a case was so strong as to compel the House to interpose in order to check the mad career of the Government in another quarter of the globe? Overruling necessity had altered usage, and the division comprised the names of Lord J. RUSSELL, who had led the Liberal Party during more than 20 most eventful years, and Mr. ROEBUCK, no political enemy of Lord PALMERSTON.

Lord PALMERSTON said, it was not his intention to renew the debate upon this subject. With regard to the expression he had used of "combination," he had said nothing which, he thought, could give offence to any man. Whether it was a combination or an accident—a fortuitous combination of atoms—he had stated it as a fact, not as a reproach. The House, he admitted, had a right to ask what was intended to be the policy of the Government. There would be no change, and could be no change in that policy, which was to maintain in China, as elsewhere, security to the lives and property of British subjects, and the rights of the country arising out of treaty obligations, and to improve our relations with China. The intention of the Government, as he had stated on Tuesday, was, in conjunction with France and the United States, to endeavor to place those relations upon a permanent footing, and it must be a subject of serious deliberation on the part of the Government who the person should be to whom was to be committed so grave and important a function.

British Policy with Regard to the China War.

From the London Times, March 6.

The Coalition has lost no time in announcing a policy so far as regards the question on which it has formed itself. Lord GREY in the Upper House, and Messrs. COBDEN, GLADSTONE, and others in the Lower, demanded that, without waiting for the appeal to the country, Government should immediately execute the orders of the House of Commons, by sending out a competent person to catch the Indian mail, and supersede all the British authorities on the coasts of China. It is hard to say whether the demand was oddest in the mouth of Lord GREY, who called on a large majority of the House of Lords to render instant submission to a small minority of the Commons, or in the mouth of Mr. COBDEN, denouncing Government as murderers if they gave one more hour's law than they could possibly avoid to his old friend the President of the Peace Society. We are thankful for the suggestion, as it will help the country to understand the position of Government on the receipt of the late news. It is scarcely possible to form even a conjecture as to the state of affairs at this moment in the East, still less what will be the state of affairs six weeks hence, when the mail now going out will arrive at Hong Kong. Ministers are then enjoined and adjured to send out at once a man to supersede all the authorities on the spot, to deprive us instantly of their better information and dearly-bought experience, and to undertake the lead in affairs to which he may be perfectly new, but which yet may require immediate action. We are aware that we owe an apology to the Parliamentary opposition for taking a business-like view of the question, but we cannot otherwise satisfy our own instincts of patriotism, justice, and truth. It is a matter of business, and we have to consider probabilities, as well as time, space and other circumstances, quite as much as if we were consigning a miscellaneous cargo to an agent at Melbourne. As a matter of business it compels us to admit another important consideration. We will honestly say that, considering the four persons at the head of our affairs at Canton do at all events know something about them, and one of them, at least, has every body's good word, we should find some difficulty in the choice of a man undoubtedly qualified to relieve them of their duties. Where in the world is this perfectly competent, universally qualified, and absolutely trustworthy man to be found? Mr. COBDEN cooperated with Sir JOHN BOWRING for many years, and not only whole classes of merchants, but distinguished politicians, and, more than all, the Peacemakers of England, put the utmost confidence in this gentleman, of whom we all know as much as it is possible to know of anybody. He was not a mere talker, for he was but an indifferent one; nor was he an aristocrat; but a man after Mr. COBDEN's own heart. Yet even this man, after being Consul some years, and after devoting himself to the study of Chinese affairs, is declared to be unfit for the conduct of our cause. The same is said of Admiral Sir M. SEYMOUR, though he is so able and excellent a man that his friends try hard to insulate him from Sir JOHN BOWRING. Consul PARKES, too, notwithstanding great ability and zeal, is also consigned to the same category of unfitness. Yet Mr. COBDEN and his colleagues would have us to believe that in spite of all these lamentable failures we shall have no difficulty in finding a man so competent as to do single-handed, and at a moment's warning, what all these able and zealous men cannot do after many years' experience. Is not haste we are to find in the streets of London a man to represent the British empire, and to wield its destinies in the whole of the opposite hemisphere at a crisis of excessive difficulty. Because Government has not done this, a dozen leading leading politicians have agreed to charge it with violence to the Constitution, and we know not what; and the foremost in this advice is a man who wants to send out anybody, any unknown person, to supersede a man in whom for many years he himself felt the greatest confidence.

But Government is also, in obedience to the vote of Tuesday, and without waiting for the decision of the public, to send out a ready-made policy, and the "competent man" is to wield the "immense force" collected at Hong Kong to carry out this policy. We are to order the undoing of everything that has been done back to the point where Mr. COBDEN says the affair of the Arrow was satisfied. This proposal appears to have the concurrence of all the other chiefs in the Coalition, and is to go to the country as the policy of the new Administration. The precise meaning of it, even with regard to the events already known in this country, we can hardly imagine. But by the time any orders could possibly arrive out at Hong Kong there will be added a whole quarter of a year to the story, all of it, on Mr. COBDEN's proposal, to be retraced, retracted, undone, and made amends for. Happily Mr. COBDEN and his friends have no objection to our taking the most vigorous measures to defend our new position. We have heard of an armed neutrality and an armed peace, but this is to be an armed repentance, an armed retractation. We are to confess to Commissioner YEH and his Celestial Majesty that with regard to the events of the eight months ending June next England is heartily sorry, and begs their pardon; but if they presume on this confession, then, of course, we must protect ourselves. This is the policy to be sent out with the perfectly competent man, and we certainly think that nobody will be so competent to carry out the policy as the propounder of it or one of his right hon. colleagues in the proposed new Administration. Here, then, we are glad to say, the British public may know what they have to choose from. On the one side they have an existing Government which has just brought England out of a terrible war, and danger of other wars hardly less formidable, into peace and security, but which, hearing that Her Majesty's servants on the other side of this planet are in difficulties with a barbaric and intractable race, refuses at once to discredit and abandon them, but waits for the result of prudent advice and ample reinforcements. On the other side they have a sudden gathering of those who only two years ago were busily employed in damaging our credit and tying our hands in the war with Russia, and now reiterate the same game on a wilder, if not a larger, scale, by proposing a wild-goose chase after a perfectly competent man, to be found to day and sent out to-morrow, with orders to see humble pie to Commissioner YEH, his assassins, and his poisoners. We understand the advice. It is not the first instance we have heard of it. Long ago scheming politicians found it their game to oppose every thing that was practical, and to make magnificent displays of stump eloquence in behalf of what was utterly unpractical and could never be brought to any actual test. It is a policy which has sometimes had a partial and temporary success, though, of course, it defeats itself in the end. Can the British public be duped by such a policy? Of course, they are not free from credulity. The commercial history of the last ten years tells sad tales on this point, but the general election will tell a much sadder tale, with still more deplorable results, if in fickle distrust of an Administration known to be worthy of its confidence it brings into power an omnium gatherum Administration, of whose joint policy nothing can be known, except a wild proposal for a "competent man," and a humble but strongly-armed apology to Commissioner YEH.

CHINESE INSTRUCTIONS TO THE GOVERNORS OF THE FIVE PORTS.

From the Moniteur de la Flotte.

The following is the tenor of the instructions alleged to have been given by the Chinese Government at Pekin to the Governors of the five ports:

1. Until further orders, all the inhabitants of the Celestial Empire are prohibited from trading with the subjects of Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain.

2. The opium markets, which have been open for the trade of the two nations, are provisionally closed. (These markets were subjected to some very severe regulations, and only a very limited quantity of opium could be legally sold in them.)

3. Around the five ports which are open to Europeans a cordon of troops is placed, for the purpose of preventing strangers from penetrating into the interior of the Empire. The canals and roads are closed against their boats, which will be confiscated in case of a contravention of this decree.

Liverpool Markets.

The Liverpool Cotton Market had been steady, but devoid of animation, the demand being but moderate,—spinners having limited their purchases to present wants, and speculators having done little. Exporters, however, have taken a fair quantity. No alteration is made in quotations, excepting fair Uplands raised ⅛d. ⅌ lb. Sales of the week, to the evening of Thursday, the 5th, were 51,270 bales, including 4,038 on speculation and 5,070 for export. Sales on Friday, the 6th, 7,000 bales, including 1,000 on speculation and for export, the market closing with firmness. New Orleans fair, 8¾d., middling Orleans, 7½d.; fair Mobiles, 8d., middling Mobiles, 7⅞d.; fair Uplands, 7⅞d., middling Uplands, 7 5-16d. Stock at Liverpool, 561,000 bales, including 199,100 bales American.

Manchester markets had, from various temporary causes, been quiet throughout the week, but on Friday there was a better demand.

The market for BREADSTUFFS had been dull and declining. Wheat was 2d. @3d. ⅌ bushel lower. Flour unsalable, and Corn 3d. @6d. ⅌ bushel less. Quotations were called White Wheat, 8s. 9d. @9d. 6d.; Red Wheat, 7s. 3d. @8s. 6d.; Western Canal Flour nominally 27s. @28s.; Philadelphia and Baltimore, 30s. @31s.; Ohio, 31s. @32s.; Canadian, 28s. 6d. @29s. ⅌ bbl.; Mixed Corn, 32s. @33s. 6d.; White, 34s. @35s. 6d.; Yellow, 32s. 3d. @34s. ⅌ 480 lbs. The weather was very favorable for agricultural purposes, and the stock of Wheat and Flour at Liverpool was equal to three months' demand.

PROVISIONS generally, were quiet, without change. Lard active, with sales at 74s. 6d. ⅌ cwt., to arrive, and 75s. @75s. on the spot. Tallow dull and irregular; price of Butchers' Association, about 56s.

ASHES sold in retail at 42s. @42s. 6d. ⅌ cwt. for Pots, and 45s. for Pearls. Of Sugar, the sales were 3,000 bbls. at 4s. 3d. @4s. 9d. for American. Linseed Oil was in limited request, at 42s. @43s. Small sales of American SPIRITS OF TURPENTINE were made at 43s. Rosin CLOVER SEED was active at 40s. on the spot and to arrive. The SUGAR market had been quiet and rather lower. COFFEE brought but want of supplies checked business. The market for TEA became excited, and common Congou advanced to 1s. 1d. @1s. 1½d. on receipt of letters from China, but the general Trade had bought only sparingly in consequence of the duty question being still in abeyance.

The Money market remained no new feature, the demand continuing good and the supply adequate. Bullion in the Bank of England (Feb. 28) displayed a reserve of notes, £3,153,000; rate of discount 4 ⅌ cent. Consols, after having fluctuated slightly, closed (Friday, 6) at 93¼@¾ for Money, and 93½@¾ for account. Exchange, London on Paris, 3 mos., 25 25@25 27½; on Amsterdam, 11 13½@11 15½; on Hamburg, 13 5@13 7½.

The London Times reports the following business done in American Securities, Friday, March 6: Illinois 7 ⅌ cent., 1875, 91; Michigan Central, 1869, sterling, 104. Closing prices were called: Illinois 6 ⅌ cent., 1875, 87@89; do. 7 ⅌ cent., 1875, 90@92; do. Freeland, 1869, 109@111; do. $100 shares, $30 paid, 90@92 p. sh.; Michigan Central 8 ⅌ cent. con., 1840, 92@95; do., 1869, 91@93, x. c.; do., 1869, sterling, 102@105; do. $100 shares, 90@92; New-York Central 6 ⅌ cent., sinking fund, 1883, 89@92; do. 7 ⅌ cent., 1864, 93@95; do. $100 shares, 82@84; N. Y. and Erie 3d mort., 7 ⅌ cent., 1883, 85@87; do. Sinking Fund, 1875, 82@85; do. Bonds, 1883, 80@83; do., 1871, 79@81; Pennsylvania Central, 1st mort. 5 ⅌ cent., 89@91; do. 2d mort. sterling 5 ⅌ cent., 64@66.

In American FREIGHTS there is no material change to notice. Rates are called from Liverpool to New-York—hay, rails, and metals, 37s. 6d.; hardware, 40s. 6d.; dry goods, 45s. 6d. @47s. 6d.; chemicals, 30s.; crates, &c., 35s.; passengers £3 10s.

The weekly report of the Havre market is from Feb. 25 to March 9, inclusive. Cotton was reported quiet; New-Orleans free ordinaire 110f. The week's sales included 1,200 to 1,500 bales, to arrive, on the basis of 106½f. @107f. for middling Orleans and Mobile, and 107½f. for strict middling. Imports 3,386; stock in port 72,000 bales; at sea, 69,000. Manufacturing prospects were still precarious. Breadstuffs dull and lower. Provisions generally firm. LARD firm, with sales on the spot and to arrive at 67f. 50c. @68f. 250 kil., duty paid. SUGAR dearer. COFFEE and RICE firm. OILS generally quiet but steady.

The Washington Epidemic—Report of the Committee of the Board of Health.

The Committee appointed by the Board of Health to cooperate with the Mayor in ascertaining, as far as practicable, the nature and cause of the epidemic disease which has recently prevailed among the guests and employees of the National Hotel, has leave to submit a brief report, confined to the testimony of persons examined by the Committee.

From the testimony of Drs. J. C. HALE and CORNELIUS BOYLE, we learn that the disease made its appearance about the latter part of the month of January, and continued during the severe weather; that it ceased for about two weeks during mild weather in February, owing, as they suppose, to the house being then better ventilated; and that it increased again and became very rife during the cold weather that returned on or about the 1st of March.

This disease, according to Dr. BOYLE, was different from any usual form of diarrhœa. Both of these physicians assure us that the attack came on suddenly, generally early in the morning; that the operations were frequent and thin, light colored, and frothy, or pasty. According to Dr. HALE, vomiting occurred when diarrhœa was checked, and vice versa. The thirst was usually great, and the patients often desired acid drinks. Both of these physicians further testify that the disease was never cured at once, but continued to return at short intervals for a considerable length of time. A removal from the hotel did not seem to contribute to the recovery of the patients, as the disease with the latter continued as violent and for as long a time as among those who continued in the building. There was no evidence, in the opinion of these gentlemen, of anything like mineral poison having been taken into the stomach; there was no evidence of inflammation of the intestines. Both concur in regarding the disease as one of "blood poison," produced by the inhalation of a poisonous miasma, generated by animal and vegetable decomposition, which entered the hotel through the sewer connecting with the sixth-street sewer.

As a further corroboration of this fact, we are assured that a peculiar and offensive odor pervaded the premises, and which was more decided in the halls than in the water-closets. This odor caused one of the physicians to become nauseated. The construction of the stench-trap at the corner of Sixth-street and Pennsylvania-avenue, by preventing the gases from escaping into the street, is considered the principal cause of the noxious gases passing into the cellar of the hotel. The boiler in the cellar, according to Dr. HALE, sided in distributing the foul gases through the building. In room (second story) No. 22, in which the Committee examined the witnesses, a register was found, which was said to communicate with the cellar, and from this an offensive odor could be distinguished entering the room. Two of your Committee have frequently recognized the offensive odor spoken of by Drs. HALE and BOYLE, in different parts of the building. The same fact is certified to by Mr. J. D. FAIRBANKS, THOMAS MCDOWELL, ALFRED F. GOSS, CHARLES WATSON, &c.

Mr. J. T. FOYE, sewer builder, testifies that "he examined the sewer of the hotel and found an opening in the southwest corner connecting with the sewer leading in the street, through which there was continually passing a current of foul gas, which nearly extinguished a candle held close to it. Previous to the trap being placed at the corner of the street the current of air, he thinks, passed from the cellar into the sewer. These cellars are very damp. [See A. T. Stewart's testimony.] CHARLES WATSON, who is a sewer builder, testifies that "there was then a door opening into the trap from the sewer, and a flow of air, that he has continued at considerable times since the trap was put in, and it is now. Generally, on opening the door, there is a current of air from the sewer into the trap." Dr. HALE and BOYLE both state that they drink the water—Dr. HALE says "drink, without boiling it, by R." [illegible] Dr. BOYLE states that he drinks water, but it is boiled. Particularly [illegible] the water [illegible] by diarrhœa. Mr. STEWART had a room and lived out of the building. Mr. THOMAS RODGERS, states that he ate and drank at the hotel without being made sick; he occupied a room in the house, but slept with a window open. JOSEPH GAUTIER, chief cook, and ALF. F. GOSS, steward, both testify that the water used when the disease appeared for the second time was not the same as that used when the disease was prevalent in January, and early in February. The latter source is that the water-tank is built of brick and lined with slate, completely closed, so that a rat could not possibly have entered the tank. The steward further states that, when the disease first appeared, at the suggestion of some of the boarders, a fresh supply of cooking utensils, of tea, sugar, coffee, flour, and milk, was obtained. He asserts that the copper vessels were well lined and perfectly clean, and in better order than he had ever seen them before. He had been steward of the Revere House, Boston, for five and a half years.

One of the greatest sufferers seems to have been the chief cook, (C. G. GAUTIER,) he was one of the first attacked by diarrhœa; he continued to have it more or less, for six or seven weeks attending to early operations per day, although not subject to diarrhœa. He slept in the house, has avoided water as much as possible, and prepared his own food. He asserts that the food was always of good quality; that he kept the keys of the meat box. None but the cooks are present when the food is being prepared. All the cooks (five in number) have been sick, and, according to the statement of Mr. Goss, there was much sickness among the servants, so much so that at one time the regular duties of the house were interrupted. Others who did not eat or drink water in the hotel, but frequented the building or occupied rooms connected with it, according to Drs. HALE and BOYLE and to the evidence of CHAS. WATSON, barber, and C. H. FRENCH, operator in Hotel's telegraph office, were sometimes affected with this peculiar form of diarrhœa. Mr. ARCO DAVIMAS also declares that during several visits to the hotel this Writer he was attacked with diarrhœa. During one of these visits he neither ate nor drank at the hotel, and yet was more sick than when he had done so. During this present visit he had partaken freely of both food and water, and has not been attacked by diarrhœa. He states that during his present visit he has the window of his room constantly open, and keeps up a coal fire.

With the papers appended to the report, will be found the statement of Mr. RANDOLPH COYLE, Civil Engineer, concerning the street sewers, together with a diagram of the same.

The Committee have to regret that time has not been allowed them to procure the testimony of several other physicians who have attended cases in the hotel, and likewise to have consulted competent architects as to the best means of arranging the sewer projecting from the hotel in order to remove the offending cause of disease, if it be, as your Committee believe, the noxious miasma, and to prevent a similar recurrence for the future.

Your Committee would especially call attention to the fact that such sewers as have had the stench-traps fixed at the openings have no means of ventilation, and that, unless the proper authorities at once proceed to remedy this serious omission by flues communicating with proper chimneys, or by some other means, we may reasonably anticipate a return of the epidemic, and should this take place in the Summer season the consequences may be vastly more serious than we have already witnessed.

Your Committee feel called upon to state that they have heard no complaint made by any witness against the proprietors of the house, who have manifested a disposition to adopt any course which might be thought most proper and advisable under the circumstances.

With this report the Committee desire to lay before the Board the accompanying papers containing the evidence in full, given under oath, touching the causes, &c., of the disease at the "National Hotel."

All of which is most respectfully submitted.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

The "Grand Inquisition" on Coroner Connery.

Investigation into the Charges Preferred Against Him to the Governor—A Wink Denied.

TESTIMONY OF STEPHEN A. MAIN.

Before Rec. Chas. P. Daly.

TUESDAY, March 24.

To-day, in accordance with previous arrangement, Judge DALY, of the Common Pleas, sat to hear evidence as to the charges of incompetency preferred against Coroner Connery, on the ground of certain alleged misconduct of his during the inquest on the late Dr. Harvey Burdell.

The Coroner was represented by three counsel; Mr. Ambrose L. Jordan, Mr. N. P. Waring, and Mr. James M. Sheehan. The investigation was conducted on the part of the State by the District-Attorney. Mr. Clinton, the counsel for Mrs. Emma A. Cunningham, as the person by whom the charges were made, was present to aid the law officer by his suggestions and advice.

The District-Attorney handed to the Court a letter from Governor King to himself officially directing an inquiry under the statute; he also produced the order made by his Honor in regard to the matter with the original charges preferred by Mr. Clinton, and the original answer of the Coroner to those charges. He had, he said, written upon the back of each of those papers an identification, and would request his Honor to sign them in order that the matter might proceed regularly. He was now ready under the proper section of the statute to examine witnesses in support of those charges, and to have the evidence taken.

Mr. Jordan asked the District-Attorney if he would state whether he meant to examine the witnesses as to any one or more or all of those specifications or charges.

The District-Attorney would do so presently. The section of the statute it might be well, however, to read: "At the time and place specified in such notice, the County Judge, before whom the inquiry shall be conducted, shall proceed to take the testimony of the witnesses produced before him by the District-Attorney, or by the acting officer. The witnesses shall be sworn by such judge, and every answer given by them to any question which either party shall require to be reduced to writing, shall be written (their testimony shall be read to and subscribed to by them, and shall be certified by the Judge taking the same) and delivered to the District-Attorney, to be by him transmitted to the Governor."

He, (the District-Attorney,) would desire to ask His Honor's interpretation.

Mr. Jordan inquired the page?

The District-Attorney said it was 234 of the new edition, and page 194, vol. 1st, of the original edition. He continued: I desire to know whether your Honor construes this section in regard to the words "shall proceed to take," and "by the Judge taking the same," to mean that your Honor shall act as taking this testimony, or whether it is to be taken before you in any other light than as a referee, you merely to act in settling the testimony previous to its being transmitted to the Governor. The reason I ask is, there have been one or two such matters before this Court, and there has been rather a conflict of opinion upon the subject.

The Judge—What was done with the Register's case?

District-Attorney—In that case the Judge sat during the taking of the testimony, but it was reduced to writing by the District-Attorney, with the consent of the other party, and to it was in the last case constituted—that of Sheriff Orser—where the charge was dismissed.

The Judge ruled that if the testimony were taken in his presence, read over to the witness, and sworn to before and certified by him, (the Judge,) there was sufficient compliance with the direction of the statute.

It was then settled that the queries and replies should be taken down as put and given.

The District-Attorney undertook to have the questions and answers committed to writing, and read the descriptive head-note which he had written down in a book, which, he said was to be used for that purpose. He then read the letter of Gov. King, which was as follows:

DEAR SIR: I send you herewith, by Mr. SEAMAN, my Private Secretary, the papers relating to Coroner Connery, and request you to take the course which is prescribed by the statute, in reference to the same.

I am, Sir, with great respect, yours, &c.,
JOHN A. KING.

MARCH 5, 1857.

He was not exactly prepared at this time to state specifically what charges he proposed to give testimony upon, and he would have, to a great extent, to consult the convenience of some of the witnesses in regard to those specifications, and not examine them in the order in which the charges appeared; but he would state that, so far as he had construed the charges and answers, there would be but very few, although they looked very voluminous, on which he should have witnesses examined.

The first witness he proposed to examine was Dr. Main; that would be on the second charge, 6th and 7th specifications. The charges are as follows:

To the Governor of the State of New-York:

The undersigned presents, under article 12, section 1, of the Constitution of the State, the following charges against Edward B. Connery, one of the Coroners for the City of New-York; and prays that the same may be served upon him, and an opportunity given him of being heard in the defense, as may be justified from time to time in such Coroner.

Charge—That in conducting an official inquisition into the cause of death of Mr. Harvey Burdell, from the 6th day of January to the 14th day of February, in the City of New-York, the said Coroner did, on the 9th day of January, or on some other day, in the month of January, in the City of New-York, in the presence of Mr. [illegible] and others, in the presence of Mrs. Burdell, and others, in the presence of Mrs. Burdell, and others, in the presence of Mrs. Burdell,

KINGS COUNTY COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER, Brooklyn, March 24.

The investigation as to John, cashy of John W. Leyland, charged for the killing of Cornelius Cannon, on the 20th of December last, was resumed this morning in the Court and a Jury.

The witnesses called by counsel of accused were:

Mrs. Leyland—I am the mother of the prisoner; I am 51 years old; John was 21 the 5th of February last; his health was always delicate; when I considered well, a patient between times as much as others; he had a cough; he spoke as spiritual beings; John would talk strange times sometimes, he is a cold, and his face would be like a dying person; he would sometimes talk of dying; he did not complain; had them turns once in a month or six weeks during the past year; I would tell him that he was dreaming; he said sometimes he was dying, that he was filled with devils, and at every one of those times due to these want of blood and when the last one left him, he should die in torment; the last turn was in November last; sometimes he considered himself dead; sometimes the Holy Ghost, and at other times Jesus Christ, and at other times the wandering star spoken of in St. Jude, or the tree that was twice dead and then plucked up by the roots; he frequently decided himself a king; had been crowned king three times; sometimes of New-York and then of the United States; he had been dethroned by a red king who lived on the Fifth-avenue, and had bad wives, and he intended to shoot him when he could see him; he considered that he had a perfect right to do anything that came into his head, and that we ought to mind what he said; the right was given him by the spirits; if I told him he was wrong, and spoke harshly to him, he would say, "That is not Mrs. Leyland, my mother; you are bewitched;" he told him he ought to pray for his sins; he would reply that he never sinned, and that he was Christ; these delusions were very frequent; he generally considered himself in the right; the delusion as to his being the Saviour commenced fully a year ago, and continued constantly up to the time he left home; and in the same way as to the other delusions; he repeated the assertion as to his sacred character the morning of the day he left home; he then said that he was Jesus Christ; he said these things sincerely, and firmly believed what he said; the claim to holiness was always set up when we argued with or reproved him; he had another delusion that he was a dead body; said this frequently, and that life was kept in him by the spirits, and that he had died before, and when he had done all the work they (the spirits) wished him to do, then they would kill him; he repeated this every little while; he at one time said he had been Mrs. Dennison for three weeks; he used to say voices by the name of Holmes kept the spirit in him; I know no such person, nor does he, that I know of; on the 5th December last, John came down to me in the morning and seemed perfectly wild; his eyes were very badly blood-shot, his face swollen, and red—very florid; there was a perfect wildness about him; he was more like a maniac; he rushed into the room, turned round two or three times, clinched his hair and said "All hell fire can't be worse than my mind;" he continued so for most of the day; he walked about striking his fists against the walls, chairs, or anything that came within his reach; it was not quite so bad at night; he conversed very little during the day; had no appetite for anything; there was a general restlessness, but he complained of no pain; that night he retired to rest, as we thought; after he had been there a little while, as usual I went up to see; his door was open, and I could not find him in the house or yard, but found the back door and gate open; he returned in about two hours and went to bed and fastened himself in his room before I could get to him; the next day he was quite wild, but not so bad as the day before; on Saturday, the 27th, his appearance was altogether changed; he looked very pale and haggard; his eyes were sunken; he was weak and languid and quite quiet.

To Court—We frequently wanted to call a physician, but he insisted that he was well, and would not have one; I wanted a physician, because I was convinced that he was insane; don't know that any person out of the family saw these strange acts; made no effort to place him in confinement, because I never considered him dangerous—except to himself; never consulted with a physician about him, or any one out of my family, except my sister.

Direct—Used to tell him, when going around the house raving, that he was going crazy; he would say he was not crazy, but that I (the witness) was getting crazy and bewildered; when I asked him how long he had these strange notions, he said "a long time before I said anything about it, because you would not believe me."

After a close cross-examination, Christopher Layman was sworn—Is father of the prisoner; is 50 years of age.

Q—Do you and the last witness belong to any particular church?

Objected to and ruled out.

John has worked for me about seven years, off and on; he has worked steadily for the past year and a half; noticed a great change in John on the 1st of May, 1856; he gradually lost knowledge of business, and for the last three months before he was arrested he would not earn more than one shilling to two shillings per day; I did not keep him at work, because he was any profit to me, but because I had read in English works that it was best to keep crazy people at work.

The testimony of this witness corroborated that of the previous witness.

a great many times prisoner, while eating, would suddenly lay back in his chair and laugh; and on one occasion I asked him what he was laughing at, and he said that he with five others were planning an expedition to take some foreign country, and he was to be made king; he did not laugh out loud.

Four o'clock having arrived, the Court adjourned to Wednesday morning.

Trinity Church.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

I belong to one of the congregations of Trinity Church. When I joined it and paid a certain sum of money for my pew I supposed that I was acquiring certain rights such as belong to the members of every congregation or religious society, and that nobody could take these rights from me except "by due course of law."

But it now appears that Mr. THURLOW WEED, Mr. BRADISH, Mr. STRONG, Dr. TYNG, Dr. TAYLOR, Mr. GARDINER, and Mr. MURRAY, are vehemently beseeching the Legislature to take them away, and to pass a law that some ten to fifteen thousand strangers shall come in for an equal share,—that the congregations of Trinity Church shall no longer elect their own church officers, but that all the Episcopalians in New-York shall have an equal voice in electing them, whether they have ever seen the inside of Trinity Church or not.

Such a law is on its face about as reasonable as a law that the congregation of Grace Church should vote for the Vestrymen of Calvary Church—that the stockholders of the Merchant's Bank should appoint the Directors of the Bank of New-York—or that the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of New-York should be elected by the inhabitants of all the Counties of the State. If it gave me, by way of compensation, a right to vote in some one or more of the other churches of the City to which I do not belong; if it enabled me to retaliate on the congregation of Grace Church, should they compel me to listen to a stupid clergyman every Sunday, by imposing some equally dreary and offensive divine upon them, it would still be absurd. But since it gives to strangers a preposterous right of controlling my affairs, without allowing me the equally irrational indulgence of interfering in theirs, it is not only absurd, but one-sided and unjust. Therefore, when I became aware of the proposed measure, I humbly and dutifully took it for granted that there was something special and peculiar in this case which the Legislature and Mr. THURLOW WEED and Mr. R. R. MURRAY knew and which I did not know—and which explained what seemed so extraordinary and outrageous.

I proceeded to search for this unknown something, and I diligently read an indefinite number of charters, acts, reports and pamphlets, dating from 1697 to the present time, but the result of my investigation was a total failure. I cannot find out, and I hereby beg to be informed why the congregations of Trinity Church should be an exception to the general rule that every congregation—Presbyterian, Methodist, Episcopalian, Roman Catholic and Latter-Day Saint, elects its own officers—vestrymen, trustees, ruling elders, or whatever they may be;—why these particular congregations should be put in subjection to a crowd of strangers who have no interest in their affairs; and why (if this anomaly must be established) they should not have the like privilege of invading Grace Church and St. George's, and compelling their vestries to preach in a surplice and their pewholders to obey new and uncongenial sextons. And until I am informed of some good and satisfactory reason for so strange a violation of universal usage and natural right, I beg leave, as one of the individuals injured and disfranchised, to enter my protest against it.

The first reason generally assigned is, that Trinity Church is "rich." This is true. By paying the clergymen of its four churches less by half than the churches up town pay their Rectors, it has an annual surplus of income which it gives away. But if its property belongs to it by law, this is an insufficient reason for taking it away. If the Legislature decide that it can lawfully take away the property and the rights of Trinity Church (which are my property and my rights) on this ground, there will be joy among the disciples of Fourier, when the fact becomes generally known—the Five Points will speedily call for a Committee of Inquiry to investigate the affairs of the Fifth-avenue—and bank stocks and real estate (that of the Church and its enemies included) will fall to a lower figure than they have reached within the memory of the oldest Episcopalian inhabitant.

Next it is said—as a second reason, that my agents and servants, the Vestry of Trinity Church, whom I helped to elect last Easter Tuesday, have managed my affairs unwisely; that they have given away money to "High Church" parties, whereas they ought to have given it to "Low Church" parties; that they built a chapel on Twenty-first-street for members of their own congregation who lived up town, whereas they ought, instead, to have bought up all the old down town churches whose congregations had moved away and sold them at a profitless building loss; that when they reported to the Senate the value of their property, they omitted that each lot was put down at "so-so, much on the Broadway side, so much on that side, and for how much each was wanted;" that they sought to have gone further, and returned options on it at its value in the market, which any person could have obtained merely for the asking; that in the opinion of a great many intelligent men, they have made a great many other blunders in religious, moral, political and money matters; that they have not been quite as active in defending the rights of the poor against the encroachments of wealthy corporations as they might have been.

Now, if we, the congregations of Trinity Church, or any one else, have done what was wrong, we neglected our legal duty. I suppose the Legislature is not the tribunal to try us. That is work which Judges and Attorney-Generals are paid to do. And if neither we nor our agents have done any legal wrong, but have only managed our own property and affairs less discreetly than we might have done, neither Courts nor Legislature have power to interfere with us. It is merely in the most general laws by which the like abuse or neglect may be prevented or remedied in the future. If the Legislature is prevailed on to do this, and to take away my property and privileges like these, I shall certainly ask that I may be heard by counsel at the bar of a Committee of Hearing to show why similar action for a Committee of Charity is not too. Might not whether the Vestry of St. George's did not most prudently when they spent the money that would have built a Free Church in adorning their own costly church edifice with a pair of open-work stone steeples—and also whether the estimable and philanthropic private gentlemen who instigate the present prosecution against me, be not really richer than they appear to be on the assessor's books—whether they give away as much of their income as they ought; and whether their property would not be better taken care of if I had a share in its management. If they say that all these are questions of private right and private discretion, with which I have nothing to do, I fully admit the force of the objection, but I reply that they cannot set it up after inviting the Legislature to interfere with my private rights on the ground of an error in the exercise of a private discretion vested in my agents. And if they say that they have legal rights in Trinity Church, though they do not belong to it, I answer that whether they have them or not, is just as much a question of law for the Courts, and not for the Legislature, as the question whether I have a right to interfere with the property of St. George's Church, to which I do not belong, cry with the storm and dwelling-houses they suppose themselves to own in fee simple absolute.

I know of no other ground than these two, on which it is sought to justify the act of confiscation now pending in the Legislature. Wealthy men and conservative men like those who are active in promoting it, must be visited with judicial blindness, or they would never ally themselves with blind popular clamor against a "wealthy religious corporation," and ask the Legislature to set up so perilous a precedent. The means they have suggested to employ are worse, if possible, than the end they seek to attain. It is a disgraceful novelty for the Legislature of this State, in undertaking to decide upon the merits of contentious whether one school of theological opinion or another be the authentical creed of a particular Church, and whether one parish church or another is the better entitled to aid and bounty from Episcopalians. It is quite as alarming to find a Committee of the Legislature appointed to inquire into a question of private right sitting with closed doors, taking ex parte evidence "of opinion" from the very men who have constituted themselves or been constituted by others a "Committee" to attack those rights, refusing even a copy of the testimony that taken on the parties interested in upholding them, and then suddenly putting on record, without notice or opportunity of defence to the party assailed, a report like that of last January, in which even the worst insinuations embodied in the vague hearsays thus collected are adopted and exaggerated.

Perhaps I may trouble you with some further suggestions on this subject. It deserves attention. The rights of the ancient Corporation now assailed are of some dignity and of some importance—but they are insignificant when compared with the general security of private property, the stability of private right, and the honor of the State of New-York, and these are in equal jeopardy.

SATURDAY, March 21, 1857.

MARKET REPORTS.

Markets.....Carefully reported for N. Y. Daily Times.

NEW-YORK, Tuesday, March 24, 1857—5 P. M.

ASHES—Are selling slowly at old prices. Pearls, $7 87½@$7 48½; Pots, $7 75@$7 81½, ⅌ 100 lbs.

COFFEE—Is nominally unchanged, at the former quotations: Java, 15c.@16c.; Laguayra, 13½c.@13¾c.; Maracaibo, 12c.@12½c.; Rio, 9¾c.@12c.; and St. Domingo, 11c., ⅌ lb.

COTTON—The demand is pretty brisk, and desirable lots are held with increasing confidence. We quote: Middling Uplands, 13¾c.@14c.; do. Gulf, 14½c.@14¾c.; other kinds, proportionate rates, ⅌ lb. From the Circular of Messrs. NEILL BROS. & CO., we can find room for only the following extract—showing the total Cotton movement of the week:

	Week's receipts.	Receipts since Sept. 1.	Week's exports.	Exports since Sept. 1.
1856-57...bales.	66,000	2,360,000	95,000	1,840,000
1855-56...bales.	108,000	2,730,000	78,000	1,772,000
1854-55...bales.	62,000	1,820,000	98,000	1,320,000
1853-54...bales.	82,000	2,050,000	88,000	1,190,000
1852-53...bales.	79,000	2,250,000	83,000	1,495,000

FLOUR AND MEAL—The market is quite dull and heavy for State and Western Flour. Home dealers are buying with reserve; shippers are reluctant to operate. The Liverpool accounts are very discouraging. Prices of most kinds are decidedly lower, and very irregular. The sales reported to-day do not exceed 5,400 bbls., in lots, mainly at prices within the annexed range:

Ordinary State	$5 55@$5 65
Straight State	5 65@ 5 75
Favorite State Extra Brands	5 75@ 6 15
Common to Good Indiana and Upper Lake	5 65@ 5 95
Common to Good Superfine Ohio	5 80@ 6 00
Fancy Michigan	5 80@ 6 00
Extra Indiana and Michigan	6 00@ 7 25
Extra Ohio	6 00@ 7 75
Fancy Genesee	6 25@ 6 50
Extra Genesee	6 75@ 8 25
Extra Missouri	6 00@ 8 25

Canadian is sparingly inquired for, at languid rates. Superfine to extra is worth only $5@$7 50 ⅌ bbl; 550 bbls were disposed of within the range. Southern is depressed, cheaper, and declining. The transactions since our last comprise about 2,500 bbls. low Mixed to Fancy and Extra, at $5@$8 and $8 50 ⅌ bbl. Rye Flour is sparingly offered and purchased, at $3 50@$3 for Fine to Superfine, ⅌ bbl. Corn Meal is in moderate supply and demand at $3 25@$3 30 for Jersey, and $3 60@$3 62½ for Brandywine, ⅌ bbl. The latter brings $17 25@$17 50 in puncheons.

FRUIT—The regular movements are limited, checked by the want of stock and the high claims of owners. Sales were made, by auction, to-night, of about 100 boxes Sicily Lemons, at $3 75; 40 half boxes do. do., at $1 80; 2,200 boxes Sicily Oranges, at $3 20@$3 35; and 500 half boxes do. do., at $1 65 each.

GRAIN—Wheat is very dull, nominally down 3c.@5c. ⅌ bushel, and still decreasing in value. We heard of sales of only small lots, including choice Canadian White, to arrive, at $1 70 ⅌ bushel. Rye is heavy and languid. Sales have been reported since our last of about 7,250 bushels, at prices ranging 85c.@90c. ⅌ bushel. Towards the close factors could not get an offer of more than 88c. ⅌ bushel, for the primest parcel. Buyers generally look for a fall. Barley readily brings $1 50@$1 60, in lots, ⅌ bushel. Being scarce and in demand, Barley Malt is still rare and needed at from $1 65@$1 75, some factors asking as much as $1 80 ⅌ bushel. Oats are moderately inquired for and are stiffly held at 54c.@55c. for Western; 58c.@54c. for State; 51½c.@53c. for Jersey, and 49c.@51c. for Southern, ⅌ bushel. Corn continues in good demand, but at falling prices. We have heard of sales of about 91,000 bushels at 64c.@68c. for mixed Southern; 44c.@71c. for new and old yellow; and 65c.@73c. for new and old white, ⅌ bushel. Mixed Western, in store, would be taken at 65c., but in not offered under 67c.@68. ⅌ bushel.

HAY—There were 550 bales River purchased at 80c.@$1 for Shipping and small lots ⅌ 100 lbs.

HOPS—There were 75 bales last year's growth disposed of at 8c.@12c. ⅌ lb.

IRON—The demand is limited, but prices are supported.

LEAD—Is rather quiet, yet stiffly held.

LIME—Rockland has fallen to 83c.@90c. for Common, and $1 25 for Lump, ⅌ bbl. Demand, fair.

MOLASSES—The market is not active; prices, however, are unaltered. New-Orleans, 75c.@76c.; Porto Rico, 57c.@63c.; Cuba Muscovado, 45c.@53c.; and Clayed Cuba, 40c.@43c. ⅌ gallon.

NAVAL STORES—Remain quiet and rather heavy at previously quoted rates.

OILS—Crude Whale finds ready buyers, mainly at 72c. ⅌ gallon,—but nearly all other varieties are inactive, though quoted steady.

PROVISIONS—Pork is steadily improving, sales having been reported since our last of about 650 bbls., in lots, at $24 for Mess, here and to arrive, and $19 50@$19 50 for Prime, ⅌ bbl. Dressed Hogs bring, in lots, 9¾c.@10¼c. ⅌ lb. Cut Meats are in limited demand, and are heavy, at 11c.@11¼c. for Hams; and 6c.@6½c. for Shoulders, ⅌ lb. Bacon is more sought after and is firm, at 10½c.@11c. ⅌ lb. Lard is in good request at buoyant prices. The transactions since our last reach about 1,900 bbls. and tcs., mostly fair to strictly prime, here and to arrive, at 14½c.@14¾c., and some bags at 14c., ⅌ lb. Beef is in fair demand, at full rates. The transactions since our last consist of 425 bbls., at $10@$11 for new Prime; $12 25@$12 25 for Country Mess; $16@$16 25 for repacked Western Mess; and $17@$17 25 for extra Chicago do., ⅌ bbl. New Prime Mess Beef is worth $26@$29 50 ⅌ tierce. Beef Hams are scarce and needed, at $25@$24 ⅌ bbl. Butter is in fair demand, and is worth 17c.@23c. for Ohio; 20c.@25c. for common to very good State; and 26c.@30c. for prime to very choice do., ⅌ lb. Cheese is in very light supply and good request, at 12c.@14c. ⅌ lb.

RICE—There were 475 tcs. disposed of at $4 25@$5 25 ⅌ 100 lbs.; mostly within the range.

SUGARS—The demand is good, and prices favor buyers. Sales have been reported at about 650 hhds. Cuban, &c., in lots, at from 6¾c.@7¾c., with (last evening) an invoice of Manilla to arrive at 6¼c.; and 600 boxes Havana within our previous range. Refined sugars are more sought after, and are held for somewhat higher prices.

TALLOW—There have been 75,000 lbs. prime sold at old figures.

WHISKY—Sales transacted, to-day, of about 750 bbls. Ohio and Prison at 26½c.@27½c. ⅌ gallon subsequently bid for.

FREIGHTS—Were not so brisk, but rates remained full rates. For Liverpool—Cotton, 5-32d. @ 3-16d. ⅌ lb.; Flour, 1s. 7½d.@1s. 9d. ⅌ bbl.; Grain, 6½d.@7½d. ⅌ bush.; Beef, 1s. 6d. ⅌ tierce, and 2s. ⅌ bbl., and heavy goods, 17s. 6d.@40s. 6d. ⅌ ton. For other ports, proportionable quotations.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The New-York appointments are a little in the dog, their official promulgation having been for some reason withheld. It was understood in Washington, last evening, however, that the following disposition of offices had certainly been made:

For Collector.....AUGUSTUS SCHELL.
For Surveyor.....BENJAMIN R. HAYS.
For Naval Office.....L. B. DUBOSCQ.
For Sheriff.....ISAIAH RYNDERS.
For District Attorney.....GEORGE B. SANFORD.

[illegible] without the names of the appointees to the offices of Postmaster, Naval Storekeeper, and Inspector of Beef, though it was confidently stated in this City, yesterday, that Mr. FOWLER would be reappointed to the former office. The long suspense will probably be over to-day.

The steamship Africa, with three days later news from Europe, arrived yesterday morning. We receive by this mail the British ministerial explanations, with reference to the recent defeat in Parliament on the China question. Lord PALMERSTON in the Commons, and Earl GRANVILLE in the Lords, simultaneously announced that, after temporary supplies were voted, and other urgent business transacted, Parliament would be dissolved, and an appeal made to the Courts. In the event of a majority in favor of defeat, it does not appear from the First Minister's statement, that there will be any essential alteration in the policy to be pursued towards China. No official intimation is given that Sir JOHN BOWRING, and other Ministers in China, will be recalled. On the contrary, orders have been issued for the immediate embarkation of more land military stores for the rest of year, and there is every indication that determined measures will be taken to protect the lives and property of British residents in China, now believed to be in imminent peril. Lord PALMERSTON has received assurances of sympathy from Liverpool, Manchester, and other important cities, and, to judge from the tone of the independent newspaper press of the United Kingdom, he is strongly supported by the nation.

[illegible] intelligence of an important character has been received from China. The authorities and the people were ferocious in their enmity to the English, and a wholesale attempt to poison the English soldiers, at Canton, had created considerable alarm. At Shanghai, the Chinese threatened to massacre all the European residents, and a panic prevailed, elsewhere, the chief points of the intelligence from the Coast at Pekin to the Gulf of the Five Ports; it exhibits such a bitter and deep-seated hostility to the British as to afford ample grounds for the apprehension that existing difficulties will not be easily settled. It was further reported that the Government had seized the Central opium dépôt belonging to the East India Company.

Through Russian sources we are informed that the Shah has ratified the Treaty of Commerce concluded at Constantinople between FERUKH KHAN and the representatives of the United States. This treaty authorizes the establishment of an American Mission at Teheran, and Consulates at Tabriz, Teeris, and Bushire. The signing of the treaty of Peace between Great Britain and Persia, was officially announced in Parliament by Earl GRANVILLE, on the 5th of March.

We publish in another part of this morning's paper, a very interesting account, copied from a London journal, of late operations and successes of American Missionaries in Persia.

The Washington Star states that reliable information from Panama has been received at Washington, to the effect that Messrs. MORSE and BORGARDUS, the Special and Resident Ministers from this Government in New-Granada, have been constrained to demand their passports, owing to the determination of that Government to refuse to do justice in the matters now in issue with the United States, and that great excitement consequently exists on the Isthmus, where it is confidently anticipated that the Government here will promptly direct United States vessels of war to take possession of the ports of Panama and Aspinwall.

Two slaves—a yellow man and a black—owned by a [illegible] Louisiana planter, attempted to escape from Baltimore last week, by traveling together as master and servant. One was sufficiently white to carry out the deception, until recognized by a Baltimore gentleman, Mr. CHARLES FOX, who was on his way to New-York. LEVI, the yellow man, finding he was detected, drew a pistol and shot himself in the abdomen and afterwards cut his throat, preferring death to a return to Slavery.

The President Pierce declines the compliment of a public dinner, tendered him by citizens of Philadelphia, stating that he has adopted a rule to discourage all such demonstrations. The General will pass the month of April in Philadelphia.

Trinity Church matters again occupied a good share of attention in the State Senate yesterday. A remonstrance was presented from the Chamber of Commerce against discriminating tolls. Resolutions complimentary to General WOOL, and tendering him the privileges, were adopted in both houses.

The inhabitants of Chelsea, Mass., have voted to accept a City Charter. This will not move them any further from Boston, nor prevent Chelsea from being in fact a part of the latter place, the same as Brooklyn is a part of New-York.

We learn from Kansas that Mr. ROBINSON has withdrawn his resignation of the Governorship of Kansas, and declared his adhesion to the Topeka Constitution. The Free-State Convention is reported to have been the largest ever held in Kansas, the proceedings being very enthusiastic.

A second bedplate for the steamer Baltic was cast yesterday afternoon at the Novelty Works. It was one of the heaviest castings ever made, weighing something over sixty tons. It was a splendid success,—the operation being perfect in every respect, and was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators. The Adriatic, which lies in dock at the works, is rapidly advancing towards completion. She will be by all odds the most magnificent vessel afloat.

There was an important decision in the General Term, Supreme Court, yesterday, concerning the law of negotiable paper. Mr. MOORE sold some coal to Mr. MCGREVEY, who gave in payment his note, made payable to MOORE, and endorsed by Mr. CLARK. The note was protested, and MOORE paid it to the holder and endorser. The question [illegible] whether a holder, who is also a payee, can sue one of the endorsers, who has endorsed for the accommodation of the maker of credit with such payee? The decision of course will go to the Court of Appeals.

J. W. WARNER, of No. 394 Broadway, was arrested yesterday, on a charge of fraud. It appears that he received Gems, and sold for, a Mr. LEWIS SALIS [illegible] $1,000 each, but did not return the proceeds to Mr. SALIS as punctually as desirable. The matter was set down for examination.

Few lectures during the late lecturing season have achieved the success attained last night by the discourse on the "Battles in the Crimea," delivered, at Hope Chapel, by Capt. DE LA RIVIERE, an officer of the Zouave Guard. The advertisement preluding the lecture described the Captain as "a participant in the sanguinary engagements of the Alma, Inkermann, Balaklava, Tchernaya, and the storming of Sebastopol," but hinted nothing further respecting him. But few persons imagined that the building would be crowded with a most intelligent auditory, and that the utmost enthusiasm would be manifested. Yet such was the case, and at the close of the lecture a meeting was organized, on motion of General WETMORE, and General SANFORD was appointed to the Chair. A resolution of thanks to Captain DE LA RIVIERE was passed, and he was invited to deliver other lectures on the same subject.

The mud in the streets grows deeper and more like putty every hour. The people, finding indignation entirely ineffective, are trying to shame ERLING into a sense of duty. In scores of places, yesterday, they had piled the mud into tombs—mounds and graves, out of which the hats and boots of effigies protruded, and over the heaps placed inscriptions in shocking verse, commenting on the undiscovered virtues of Mayor WOOD, and the wretched inefficiency of ERLING. The streets have not yet been given over to the contractors, to whom they were awarded last week. Why, we are unable to discover.

The Surrogate gave a decision yesterday in the JAMES BACH will case, ordering the same to probate. Mr. BACH was formerly a merchant of this City, but retired from business for the past twelve years. He died in October last at the age of 70, leaving all his personal and real estate to two lady housekeepers. As he left no known relatives, the will was contested by the Public Administrator, claiming for the City the personal property, and by the Attorney-General, claiming on behalf of the State the real estate. The will was contested on the ground of incapacity, and undue influences upon the testator. The Surrogate held that the evidence showed that the decedent was possessed of sound mind and testamentary capacity when he made the will. The amount of property involved is some $20,000.

The furniture, dental apparatus, and other effects of Dr. BURDELL, at No. 31 Bond-street, are to be sold at auction on Monday next, by the Public Administrator, pursuant to the order of the Surrogate. The furniture to be sold includes that in the first and second stories only. That of the basement, the third story and the attic, belongs to Mrs. CUNNINGHAM, and will remain undisturbed till the 1st of next May. Mrs. CUNNINGHAM's children will remain unmolested in the house till the 1st of May.

The examination of Coroner CONNERY, relative to alleged indecorum in his examination of witnesses at the "Grand Inquest" at No. 31 Bond-street, on the body of Dr. HARVEY BURDELL, was commenced yesterday before Judge DALY. The proceedings, if not very interesting, were at least very funny. Whether they will redeem the lack of dignity complained of in the aforesaid inquest, or add fresh ridicule to that investigation, may, at present, be considered a doubtful matter.

The City Assessors—two from each Ward—held a meeting yesterday at the City Hall, to take action towards getting a uniform salary allowed them. They propose to petition the Board of Supervisors to give them $700 each per annum, the compensation at present paid to the Brooklyn Assessors. At the present time their pay is decided by the value of property assessed in their respective Wards, and varies from $425 to $625 a year, never, according to their statement, exceeding the last named amount.

A divorce suit was commenced in the Supreme Court Circuit yesterday, to which the parties are JAMES Y. and EMILY A. SMITH.

The Almshouse Governors met yesterday and did nothing of importance. Under their care there are now 5,625 persons.

The Palmerston Ministry.

Lord PALMERSTON's faith in the vitality of his official character really almost reaches the sublimity of fanaticism. Fortune and faithful followers have conspired to feed the flame of his belief with the fuel of experience, and now after nearly half a century of public life, at an age when most men begin to think of the arm-chair of repose and the chimney corner of domestic adulation, the high-spirited Viscount, having sustained in the Commons a defeat as vexatious as it must have been unexpected, throws himself and his Cabinet at once upon the country with the audacity of a SHERIDAN and the self-confidence of a PITT.

Parliament combines to kill PALMERSTON, and lo! it is PALMERSTON who kills Parliament! "You have beaten me," he cries to the disorderly army of the allies, "You have beaten me; but, in beating me, you have beaten a Parthian foe, whose retreat shall be your ruin." The Ministerial statement made by the Premier in the House of Commons breathes a spirit of defiance so absolute as to be positively good-humored. Lord PALMERSTON patronizes the "accidental majority" in the most supreme way. He tells them flatly—what they very well know—that no man of them can hope to combine a party sufficiently strong to carry the country against the existing Ministry, and declares that, as they have shown themselves unwilling to acquiesce in the policy of a Government which they may overthrow but cannot supplant, it is just as well that they should be sent back to their constituents for "revision and correction." "You have been a Parliament now," he says, "for five long years, in the course of which you have seen much more of life than usually falls to the lot of Parliaments—you have had your share of governing and debating—more than your share of excitement and interest. Why should you not be dissolved and returned to your original elements? In truth you are a very old Parliament, and therefore you can hardly suit me who am a very young Premier." He passes disdainfully over the agency of Mr. CORDEN in the vote which brought on the crisis, hardly alluding to the existence of the party of which that gentleman is the temporary leader. He compliments Mr. DISRAELI on the good sense and good breeding of his recent course, and gives Mr. GLADSTONE a sarcastic intimation that he is quite too headlong and impulsive a creature to be successful in organizing afresh the shattered system of Torydom. In short, from the beginning to the end of his brilliant and effective speech, he is as jaunty, as supercilious, as satirical, as free from malice, and as contemptuous of principle as ever.

He will carry on the business of the country as carefully as Parliament will permit; he will negotiate the Dallas-Clarendon Treaty as slowly as the exigencies of the case now requires; and he will leave the final judgment of his policy and his measures to be pronounced, not on the benches of St. Stephen's, but on the benches of all England, with an evident conviction that the verdict of the electors will continue himself and his friends in power; not because they are the persons best fitted to administer the affairs of Great Britain, but because nobody else can be found upon whom a decent working majority of votes can be united.

We have little doubt that the event will bear him out. Mr. CORDEN took up the gauntlet of the Premier with some slight appearance of irritation, and proclaimed his readiness to go into a contest against the cry of "PALMERSTON forever, and war in China!" But it is difficult to see just what rallying cry Mr. CORDEN himself expects to lead on and up into the shout of "Victory!" No great question of principle can be brought before the country between this time and the month of May, and England cannot be revolutionized by an appeal in behalf of Commissioner YEH and the Celestial Empire. The political world of our transatlantic cousins is subsiding rapidly into the condition in which DE TOCQUEVILLE found our own public life to be twenty years ago, when he declared himself to be in some doubt whether most to pity the people who could be agitated by such trivial questions, or to envy the people who could find no questions more important to divide them. The need of statesmanship i spassing over from the Old world to the New. Let us hope that with the need the gift of statesmanship also may come to us!

The Governor of Kansas.

Gov. GEARY is reported, by the Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, to have disclaimed the statements put into his mouth by the Missouri Democrat, attributing his resignation to a failure of the late President to give him promised support. It is now alleged that his abandonment of the Territory was prompted by other reasons. On the other hand, the Missouri Democrat declares that Gov. GEARY uttered everything attributed to him, in the presence of five or six witnesses, and said much more in condemnation of the Pro-Slavery faction in Kansas, which they did not publish. We hope it will not be found that the Ex-Governor has permitted vanity to get the better of discretion. If he were going to Washington for the purpose of making better terms with the new Administration, and obtaining fresh support, he should have talked less freely in a newspaper office. If, on the contrary, he has no intention of returning, he should not retreat from statements which he has made.

It is rumored that ROBERT J. WALKER is thought of as his successor. We doubt whether the office would suit him any better than he would suit the country. Why not give Senator DOUGLAS an opportunity to distinguish himself in this new field? As the father of the Nebraska bill, he may be supposed thoroughly to understand its true intent and meaning,—and he would probably be glad of an opportunity to vindicate his assurances to the Democracy of the North, that the bill was not intended to carry Slavery into Kansas. He has all the ability, energy and courage essential to the proper discharge of the Executive functions; and he could not fail to command the respect and confidence of those in the Territory who make the most trouble there.

We should be glad, on the whole, to see Senator DOUGLAS appointed to the vacant post. The President could not possibly give any stronger pledge of his determination to give the doctrine of popular sovereignty full effect.

The Dallas-Clarendon Treaty.

We do not see much reason to doubt the speedy and satisfactory return to our shores of the Treaty which goes out to England in the steamship America from Boston to-day. For, although the much-talked-of "amendments" upon which the Senate has been occupied in secret session have not been formally published to the world, enough has been made known of their tenor and force to warrant a belief that the English Ministry will make little difficulty in accepting them as modifications of the original instrument, which do not at all affect its vital qualities.

The objects held in view by the British Government, from the beginning of the negotiations which resulted in the Dallas-Clarendon Treaty, were stated by Lord CLARENDON himself, in the House of Lords, during the debate on the Queen's Speech, in almost the very words which we have ourselves employed, on more than one occasion, to describe them. According to Lord CLARENDON, England considered herself to have "no interest in Central America beyond that of possessing a free transit across the Isthmus," and, for the purpose of securing that object, not to herself alone, but to all the commercial nations of the globe, she was willing to waive all minor considerations, insisting only on such a guarantee of the rights and interests of the Mosquito Indians as those Indians had a just claim to expect of her, after nearly two hundred years of a quasi-protection, invited by them, and afforded by Great Britain. As we understand the "amendments" proposed by the Senate, they do not touch the question of the free transit, and do not interfere materially with the guarantees required by England, for the security and the liberties of her copper-colored sovereigns of the most debatable region in all that highly-debatable land of Central America.

The most important proposition advanced by the advisers of the President seems to refer not so much to the Dallas-Clarendon Treaty, itself, as to a secondary treaty concluded between England and Honduras, for the cession to the latter State of the Island of Ruatan, previously claimed and occupied by England. As the treaty was negotiated between two powers in whose affairs the American Senate can hardly demand to be heard as of right, it may appear to have been a somewhat uncalled-for anxiety for the welfare of others, which stimulated this particular modification of the Dallas-Clarendon Treaty. Such, however, is not the case. For by the treaty between England and Honduras, it is expressly provided that "Slavery shall, at no future time be permitted to exist in the Island of Ruatan or the other islands of the Bay of Honduras;" and as it has now been judicially decided that wherever Slavery is to be found, there the genius of the American Republic is present to protest it, our Senators in secret session assembled have endeavored to deserve well of their country by interposing the aegis and the eagle of the United States between this prohibitory clause and the possible future of our most interesting national institution. The Bay Islands like such, indeed, all the Islands, and generally speaking, the coasts of Central America, are, by right, the property of the Mosquito Indians, who, for the dignity demanded, for they have constituted themselves with surprising pack strategy in the language of the Dallas-Clarendon Treaty do may enable the American Government to recognize the cession of the Bay Islands, and the establishment of their neutrality under the flag of Honduras, without committing itself on the Anti-Slavery propositions of the Convention by which those objects were secured.

One might have expected a grander and more prophetic self-assertion from those devotees of "manifest destiny," to whom we are chiefly indebted for these objections; but we are content to leave the merely critical consideration of the manner in which they have recorded their protest, in order to call the attention of our Democratic readers to the instructive fact, that these so-called Democratic leaders, who are never weary of declaiming against "entangling alliances" offer no objections to entering into a joint-protectorate with England over Central America, excepting such as are drawn from the incompatibility of that arrangement with their dominant passion for the protection of Slavery! As obstacles to the final settlement of the Central-American question, these "amendments" of the Senate, we repeat, will be easily disposed of on the other side of the Atlantic. What the effect upon the reputation of American diplomacy and statesmanship may be of such objections to such an instrument, is quite another question, and one upon which we have little wish to enter. For the simple conclusion of the whole matter is this—that after a series of vexatious difficulties between England and America, originating in bad policy, and aggravated by worse diplomacy on the part of both nations, had at last been brought to a termination by an elaborately drawn and much-debated Treaty, the final ratification of that Treaty was needlessly delayed, and even hazarded, by an opposition which rested ostensibly upon grounds so slight and untenable as to justify and even to provoke the suspicion, that the party which acted upon it was governed by a regard to interior and unrevealed objects, as little likely,—were their real nature known,—to secure the support of Americans as to command the sympathy of Englishmen.

How to Make the Best of a Bad Business.—A bargain is a bargain, in marriage as in everything else;—and bad bargains are perhaps quite as common in this department of human affairs as in any other. Mr. JOHN G. BOKEM has lost a daughter and Mr. JOHN DEAN has gained a wife, and many very unpleasant features characterize the transaction on both sides. Mr. BOKEM was naturally and excusably most zealous and determined in his opposition to the marriage;—but his daughter was of full age, competent, therefore, to make contracts for herself, and in this case simply exercised an unquestioned right, in which the law protects her. Mr. BOKEM has done all he could to prevent the marriage, and we have no doubt he acted throughout from a sincere and zealous desire to promote the welfare and secure the happiness of his daughter.

But he has been foiled—as many an anxious and tender father has been foiled in the same way before. He must of necessity submit:—but it is a matter of very great importance to him, as well as to others, how he may acquiesce in what he cannot help. It is very common for parents whose wishes and hopes have been thwarted in this way, to enter upon a life-long punishment of their offending children—to cast them off, disown them, and spend the remainder of their lives in reflecting upon the misery and wretchedness to which their righteous anger may have reduced them. Mr. BOKEM will probably be tempted by his evil genius—which will assume the guise of family pride and self-respect—to venture upon the same experiment. We hope, for his own sake, that he will not do it without serious reflection. Let him first consult confidentially some father who has suffered similar wrong, and taken this method of redress. Let him ask him whether discarding an offending daughter,—thrusting her out of his heart and house,—reducing her from affluence to penury, has brought happiness to his hearth, sweet sleep to his pillow, and the calm satisfaction of having acted with nobleness and magnanimity to his hours of solitude. Let him find out whether he has really added to his stock of domestic comfort,—whether he is quite at ease in conscience and at heart, or whether he does not very often say to himself, if not to others, that the matter was badly managed and that on the whole he would give half his fortune if the dear girl,—offender as she is,—were only back again, where he could love her and make her happy. Pride, parental or personal, is a bad adviser:—and when it prompts to acts that stifle the affections, it is cruel and false and can lead to nothing but unhappiness,—masked it may be, but none the less gnawing and real. Mr. BOKEM is a man of sense and of taste:—he must be a man of feeling and of judgment also. He will learn—if he does not know it now,—that no man ever became happy by becoming cruel,—that severity to a child is so against nature that it is sure to avenge itself,—and that no extent of wrong-doing should suffice to root out of a father's heart all solicitude for the well-being of his daughter. If he will believe this in advance and act upon it, he will save himself years of misery which otherwise the lesson may cost.

An English Opinion of Coroner Connery.—Notwithstanding that our English brethren have a pretty constant succession of domestic murders of their own to speculate upon, the murder of Doctor BURDELL, and the conduct of Coroner CONNERY, appear to have excited about as much attention in London as they did here. The Times, of the 5th inst., says:

"It it is not for us to impugn the judicial customs of other nations, but certainly a more violent contradiction to English usages in such matters than the inquest at New-York into the manner in which the late Dr. BURDELL came to so tragical an end, can scarcely be conceived."

But, when the Times reads the reports of the examination into the conduct of Coroner CONNERY, which was commenced yesterday, it will find that the conduct of that official was as much in contradiction to our own usages in such cases as it was to the usages of England.

"Not so Bad as We Seem."—We were inclined to feel unhappy yesterday, under the imputation of the Tribune that we had given efficient support to the cause of Gen. WALKER in Nicaragua, until we discovered, in the same paragraph, a concession that every advance of the steps in this direction had been followed by a sharp kick of some. On reflection, we feel much more at ease on the subject. We, at all events, had not received any very alarming amount of aid and comfort at our hands.

Roads to the Pacific.—The dream of half a century begins to be realized, and we may soon expect to see a well-made road across the Continent from the Mississippi River to the Pacific. Not a railroad, it is true, but its sure and necessary precursor—a properly-constructed wagon road—has been authorized by Congress, and active preparations are making for the effective expenditure of the appropriations provided for that purpose. Three different Departments of the Government will unite their experience and their forces for the prosecution of the work. The Department of the Interior disburses $500,000, appropriated for the construction of military roads, the War Department $100,000 for digging artesian wells to supply water on the desert, and the Post-Office Department gives out the contract of $600,000 per annum for transportation of the mail over the new road.

The general course of the main road to be made, (for there are two others of less importance, to connect with roads now constructing in the Territories,) is that of the Memphis railroad route marked out by one of the Pacific Railroad surveys. As the principal work is to be done under direction of a Civil Department, instead of the War Office, we may hope for expedition and economy,—for experience has established the fact that public roads constructed in the Territories under direction of the Indian Bureau have been cheaper, better and far more expeditiously made than those engineered by the War Department. At all events, there seems to be a disposition to hasten the work; and we learn from Washington that the necessary preliminaries are being arranged as rapidly as though the new Administration were not overborne by the pressure of patriots who seek opportunity to serve the Government and themselves. There is no reason to doubt that the appropriation will be sufficient to put the entire line in good condition for travel, although additional expenditure will doubtless be necessary for permanent improvements.

A Liberal Measure.—A resolution was adopted in our Board of Aldermen, on Monday night, permitting farmers in this neighborhood to dig manure in our streets to be used on their lands. Considering that our merchants are compelled to pay the Peruvian Government large sums for the privilege of taking guano from the Chincha Islands, the resolution of our Aldermen affecting the freedom of the streets to the farmers, must be regarded as extremely liberal. If the Commissioner of Streets were to offer the manure under his charge for sale, we presume he would obtain some very favorable bids. If the English and French Governments were aware that they could have the privilege of sweeping our streets, they would probably send over a fleet of ships to load with the rich deposits of our thoroughfares, instead of sending to the Pacific for guano. In return for the unfriendly action of the New-Jersey Legislature, in refusing to lease us the use of Sandy Hook for a lazaretto, we heap coals of fire on the heads of those unneighborly people, by permitting them to help themselves, scot free, of the valuable manure with which our streets are so thickly spread.

The Spring Trade of New-York and Philadelphia.—The Philadelphia Ledger modestly remarks that "Philadelphia enjoys, in fact, a geographical position which enables her to forward goods to the West, in the Spring, several weeks earlier than New-York." We must confess that this piece of information takes us by surprise, as it probably will our jobbers and their Western customers. As Philadelphia is but five or six hours' distance from New-York, and there is a constant communication between the two cities, by means of railroads and steamboats, we do not see how Philadelphia can have more than a few hours the advantage of New-York, in forwarding goods, at the most. The Ledger also says that Philadelphia can undersell New-York merchants, because rents are not so high in that city as they are here. But, let that be as it may, we would inform our neighbor in the cheap city, that the high rents in New-York are owing solely to the great amount of business done by those who pay them. If customers did not find it to their advantage to buy goods in New-York, rents would very soon come down to the level of Philadelphia prices.

Cheap as Dirt.—This unsavory proverb may have had a certain degree of economical truth in by-gone days, but it is long since it had any in this City. Dirt is, in fact, a very dear commodity. Our dirty streets cost, last year, in hard cash more than $800,000, but the incidental cost of them must have exceeded a million. This year we are to pay, by contract, only $179,000, which is comparatively cheap. If our dirty streets should breed an epidemic, as they possibly may, the cost of our City dirt would not fall short of a hundred millions. The City of Washington is paying rather heavily, just now, for their dirty sewers, and the proprietors of the National Hotel have found dirt to be anything but cheap. The old proverb should be dropped and "clean and cheap" adopted in its place. We hope our own hotel-keepers will not fail to profit by the disastrous dirtiness of Washington.

The Boot on the Other Leg.—The Evening Post is decidedly in favor of transferring the Government of the City from the City Hall in the Park to the Capitol at Albany, for the alleged reason that "The City is ruled by the Federal Government, through the Custom-House, and the people of our City have no more to do with the administration of its public affairs, than the people of France or Russia have to do with theirs. It becomes, then, a simple question whether New-York City shall be governed at Washington or at Albany; by the general or State Government. For our own part, we confess we prefer State rule, under all circumstances, to the other."

The Post is not well posted. The boot happens to be on the other leg. Our Mayor has left the City in the charge of the Alderman of the Sixth Ward during the past fortnight, while he has been in Washington assisting the President in disposing of the Federal offices in New-York.

Earl-y.—In the debate in the House of Lords on the defeat of the ministry on the Chinese affair, the whole business of the upper house of Parliament was conducted, according to the reports altogether by nobodies bearing the title of Earl.

"The Earl of HARDWICKE asked Lord PALMERSTON," &c.; the "Earl of ELLENBOROUGH begged," &c.; "Earl GREY wished to know," &c.; "Earl GRANVILLE denied the right," &c.; "the Earl of MALMESBURY asked," &c.; "the Earl of CLARENDON," &c.; "the Earl of [illegible]," &c.; "the Earl of [illegible]," &c.; "the Earl of [illegible]

THE NEW-YORK APPOINTMENTS—ROBERT J. WALKER DECLINES TO BE GOVERNOR OF KANSAS—MINOR APPOINTMENTS.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, March 24.

Although it is understood that the following appointments for New-York were made to-day, the official promulgation has been withheld.

Collector—Augustus Schell.
Surveyor—Benjamin R. Hart.
Naval Agent—Gen. R. Sandford.
Marshal—Capt. Isaiah Rynders.
Naval Officer—J. R. Burdsall.

Hon. Robert J. Walker was at the White House to-day, and was offered the Governorship of Kansas, which his friends say he declined.

The Departments are being overwhelmed with applications, personal and by mail, for minor appointments, growing out of a misapprehension of the principle of rotation, which, as a general rule, is only intended to apply to the larger class of offices.

In consequence of the sickness of Mr. Appleton, who is, however, convalescent, there have been various unfounded rumors about the Union. Among them is one, which is untrue, that Major Poore has connection with its editorial columns.

Several applications have been made for the construction of the wagon-roads to the Pacific, authorized by an act of the late Congress, but the Secretary of the Interior has taken no action in the premises.

Fort Kearney and Laramie will not be abandoned till Autumn.

Rodney R. McHalnow has been appointed Postmaster of New-Orleans, vice Neyire, removed.

From Baltimore.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRES AT RICHMOND, VA., AND IN THE WOODS OF NORTH CAROLINA—RESIGNATION OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL OF VIRGINIA, ETC.

BALTIMORE, Tuesday, March 24.

A fire at Richmond, Va., yesterday, destroyed the large drug establishment of Messrs. Purcell, Ears & Co. The loss is estimated at $80,000, which is covered by insurance.

A large fire has also occurred in the woods near Wilmington, N. C., destroying a great quantity of pine timber and turpentine.

Mr. Bocock, Attorney-General of Virginia, has resigned, and Governor Wise has ordered an election to fill the vacancy on the fourth Monday of May.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company has abandoned the defense of the injunction suit brought by the city to restrain the issue of dividend bonds.

The Philadelphia Appointments.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, March 24.

Some doubt exists here as to the appointment of Messrs. Westcott as Postmaster, and Mr. Yost as Marshal, because their names are not included in the Philadelphia appointments published in the Union.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, March 24.

The Union publishes the appointments only where the commissions have been issued. There is no doubt here as to the correctness of our Philadelphia list.

News from Kansas.

ST. LOUIS, Monday, March 23.

In compliance with a resolution passed by the Topeka Convention, Mr. Robinson withdrew his resignation of the Governorship of the State of Kansas, and declared his adhesion to the Topeka Constitution. A Committee was appointed to frame a petition, asking the President to hold the lands of the Territory subject to preemption for two years from the present time. The Convention was the largest ever held in Kansas, and the proceedings were of a very enthusiastic character.

Chelsea (Mass.) Changed from a Town to a City.

BOSTON, Tuesday, March 24.

The inhabitants of Chelsea, yesterday, voted to accept the charter making that town a city, by 783 in favor of it to 107 against it.

The Nashville at Charleston.

CHARLESTON, Tuesday, March 24.

The U. S. mail steamship Nashville, Captain Ewan, arrived here, from New-York, yesterday evening, at half-past nine o'clock.

NEW-YORK LEGISLATURE.

SENATE....ALBANY, Tuesday, March 24.

The President presented a remonstrance from the Chamber of Commerce against discriminating tolls.

Mr. Brooks presented a memorial from the Jews Hospital for relief; also from the New-York Bar in relation to the Court of Appeals.

Remonstrances were presented by various Senators from churches at Goshen, Lansingburg, Washington, Saratoga, Brooklyn, Watertown, Genesee, Troy, Hudson, Albany, and New-York, against the modification or repeal of the law of 1814 relative to Trinity Church.

Mr. Brooks presented a protest from the Rector of the same Church against a change in the law, and Mr. Sprague a petition largely signed in favor of the law. Both papers were ordered to be printed.

The Senate then proceeded to consider, agreeably to resolution, private claim bills.

Mr. Burns offered a resolution complimentary of the services of General Wool, who, he said, had just returned to the Capital of his native State after an absence of three years, and tendering him the privilege of the Senate during his visit.

Mr. Wadsworth eloquently seconded the resolution, and the same was adopted.

Messrs. Briggs, Bellinger and Wadsworth were appointed a Committee to inform Gen. Wool of the passage of the resolution.

ASSEMBLY....ALBANY, Tuesday, March 24.

A resolution tendering the privilege of the Assembly to Gen. Wool, was, on motion of Mr. James, unanimously adopted.

A bill for the relief of Mr. George R. Woolridge, injured by a train at the last session, who was injured so seriously on the Hudson River Railroad, while employed in the service of the State, was debated in Committee of the Whole, and ordered to a third reading after some opposition from Mr. H. Baker. The bill appropriates $3,000.

The bill providing for the payment of the expenses incurred in contesting seats in the Legislature and Senate, was ordered to a third reading.

The California Wagon Roads.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, March 22, 1857.

Senators Gwin, of California, and Rusk, of Texas, are still here, urging immediate and effective measures for the opening of the California wagon roads authorized at the late session of Congress. For the overland mail contract between the Mississippi River and San Francisco there are a number of applicants. Prominent among the number is an old Californian stage contractor, familiarly known as "Jim Burch," who proposes to take it entirely in his own hands, and run a semi-weekly mail for the $600,000 per annum authorized to be paid by Congress.

Burch offers to make the trip regularly in twenty-five days via Marshall, Texas, the Gila River, San Gregorio Pass, Tejone Pass on the west side of Tulare Lake, and through Pacheco Pass to San Francisco. There seems to be a pretty decided conviction here that the Salt Lake route is impracticable because of the severe Winters and heavy snows. For this reason or some other, a Southern route is quite certain to be selected. There are other parties than Burch,—able, energetic and practical men, with abundance of capital to back them—who are anxious to form a company to take the contract, and who would be glad to cooperate with him to that end. He, however, is not disposed to touch the matter unless he monopolizes the whole.

This is strenuously objected to by Mr. Rusk, who will not consent to trust the execution of so important and extensive an enterprise to a single individual. The probabilities at present favor the award to a company of practical men, who are experienced in staging and "packing" across the Western plains and south-western deserts. It is thought that a through mail may be transported overland within the next six or eight months.

The following is a copy of the act for the construction of the road:

AN ACT for the construction of a wagon road from Fort Kearney, via the South Pass of the Rocky Mountains and Great Salt Lake Valley, to the Eastern portion of the State of California, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That the sum of three hundred thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any money not otherwise appropriated, for the construction of a wagon road from Fort Kearney, in the Territory of Nebraska, via the South Pass of the Rocky Mountains, leaving eastern boundary of the State of California, near Honey Lake, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, pursuant to contracts to be made by him; said road to connect with and for an extension of the road already authorized from Fort Ridgely to the aforesaid South Pass.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the sum of two hundred thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the construction of a wagon road from El Paso, on the Rio Grande, to Fort Yuma, at the mouth of the Gila River, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, pursuant to contracts to be made by him.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That a sum of fifty thousand dollars be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the construction of a wagon road from Fort Defiance, in the Territory of New-Mexico, to the Colorado River, near the mouth of the Mohave River.

Kansas Affairs—Governor Geary and the Administration.

Correspondence of the Baltimore Sun.

WASHINGTON, Monday, March 23, 1857.

The Administration are, to-day, to take into consideration the subject of the state of things in Kansas. They have to decide not only upon the men whom they are to select for the offices in the Territory, but also upon the policy which they are to pursue in regard to the questions which still threaten to render the Territory the theatre of a bloody contest. It is truly remarked, therefore, that this is an important day with the new Administration and for the public interests. The President has, no doubt, a just appreciation of the responsibility which rests upon him in relation to this subject.

Gov. Geary, as I learn, had an interview last evening with Ex-President Pierce, and utterly disclaimed the authorship of, or any responsibility for, the article in the St. Louis Democrat which introduces his valedictory address, and with serious charges against the late administration. It appears now that Governor Geary does not charge the Pierce Administration with neglect or refusal to afford him proper support, and that he threw up his commission for reasons which I referred to in my letter yesterday. That his life was in danger after the Sherrard affair, if not before, there can be no doubt.

Intelligent men from Kansas, who are now here, say that immigration into the Territory is increasing, but that the present agitation has had the effect to arrest the tendency to extravagant speculation in lands and town lots. Further, they say that a civil war will probably break out in the Territory within thirty days, though they themselves deprecate its effect upon their own interests as property holders. The northern people who are flocking to the Territory do not, generally, carry arms with them at the present time.

It is rumored that the Administration will decide to-day to reverse the policy of Mr. Pierce in regard to the selection of Governors for the Kansas and Nebraska Territories, and will send a Southern man to Kansas and a Northern man to Nebraska. Several names have already been mentioned in connection with the appointments. A man of high character, courage, and independence, should be selected for Kansas, and such a man can be found in Robert J. Walker, though it is not to be taken for granted that he would accept it. But a better opportunity to render distinguished services to the country is not presented to the ambition of any man.

The Other Side.

From the Missouri Democrat, March 19.

Gov. Geary and his Private Secretary came to this office unsolicited by us, and voluntarily, in the presence of five or six gentlemen, gave utterance not only to all we have put in his mouth, but a greatdeal more that we didnot find room to publish, and which our pen could not, by any possibility, have colored so highly as did the words of his tongue. He spoke freely, fully, and most indignantly of the outrages of the Pro-Slavery faction in Kansas, their mail robberies, their murders, their legislative and judicial abominations, and declared that henceforward the "padlock should drop from his lips, and the whole truth should be made known." We have no apprehension that Gov. Geary will deny any of our statements.

THE SHADOW WORSHIPER,
And other Poems. By Frank Lee Benedict. 1 vol., 12 mo. 75 cents.

"I seek only
That which all seek, some human sympathy
In this mysterious Island."

From Mrs. Stephens' Monthly.

"The Shadow Worshiper" is emphatically an ideal poem, the birth of a vivid imagination and of an intellect rich with vigorous thoughts; in its construction we find little detail and no passages to slumber over. The scenes are pictures, and the thoughts at times startling. Some of them may well challenge criticism for their boldness, while they excite surprise from a powerful originality.

Characters by Mrs. Jordan, Stoddart, Kent, Miss Ada Clifton, Nora Plunkett, and Miss Laura Keene.
To be followed by
THE ELVES; OR, THE STATUE BRIDE,
presented with new scenery, costume, properties and mechanical effects.
Lucrum.—The Mountain forests of Pastoria are inhabited, it is said, by Fairies, Sprites and Elves, who, like the Phantom Dancers of Germany, delight to entrap the Pastoral Peasantry and torment them with their frolicsome antics. Having the power of transforming the spirit, they often, in their malicious gambols, give life to the newly dead, Statues, rocks and trees are seen furiously dancing in the forest, but it is only during the night they retain their fantastic existence; at the approach of morn they resume their immobility.
Count Coldstream.....Mr. Wheatleigh
Gellin.....Mr. E. Johnston
Fairy.....Miss Kate Reignolds
Spirit of the Statue.....Miss Laura Keene

MEDICAL.

SANDS' SARSAPARILLA.

The Spring medicine for the million. If your blood is sluggish or impure, it will rejuvenate and purify it. If your secretions are irregular or defective, it will stimulate them to healthy action; and as an alterative and renovating agent it is unequaled.

Prepared and sold by A. B. & D. SANDS, No. 100 Fulton-st.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.—DR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pastures weeds a remedy that cures every kind of humor, from the worst scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over 1,100 cases, and never failed, except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over 200 certificates of its virtue, all within 30 miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a scaldy scry mouth.

One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.

Two to three bottles will clear the system of boils.

Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth or stomach.

Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of erysipelas.

One to two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.

Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the eyes and blotches among the hair.

Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers.

One bottle will cure scaly eruption of the skin.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of ringworm.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.

Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the salt rheum.

Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula. A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Reader, I publish over a thousand bottles of this in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. As sure as water will extinguish fire, as sure will this cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that I sold another; after a trial, it always speaks for itself. There are two things about this herb that appear to me surprising—first, that it grows in our pastures, in some places quite plentiful, and yet its value has never been known until I discovered it in 1846; second, that it should cure all kinds of humor.

In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, 1853, I peddled it, and sold about six bottles per day. In April, 1854, I sold over a thousand bottles per day.

No change of diet ever necessary—eat the best you can get, and enough of it.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.—Adults, one table spoonful per day; children over 8 years, dessert spoonful; children from 3 to 8 years, the spoonful. As no direction can be applicable to all conditions, take sufficient to operate on the bowels twice a day.

Mr. KENNEDY gives personal attendance in bad cases of Scrofula.

NEW AND IMPORTANT DISCOVERY IN THE SCIENCE OF MEDICINE.—TRIESEMAR.—None are genuine unless the engravings of the Seals of the Patent Office of England, the Seals of the Ecole de Pharmacie de Paris, and the Imperial College of Vienna, are fixed upon each wrapper, and around each case.

Sold by Dr. H. A. BARROW—Member of the Imperial College of Vienna, and Royal College of Surgeons, London, who may be personally consulted at his residence, No. 197 Prince-st., (few blocks west of Broadway,) New-York, from 11 o'clock in the morning till 2, and from 4 o'clock till 9 in the evening. (Sundays excepted.)

TRIESEMAR No. 1—Is the remedy of general and total debility, loss of virile power, premature decay, and all the distressing consequences arising from early abuse, &c.; all physical impediments vanish like magic before its influence, thus rendering its use invaluable to those entering the marriage state.

TRIESEMAR No. 2—Entirely eradicates all traces of those filthy diseases which scrofula and cubeba have so long been thought an antidote for to the ruin of the health of a vast portion of the population.

TRIESEMAR No. 3—Is the great European remedy for that class of disorders which unfortunately, the English physician treats with mercury to the inevitable destruction of the patient's constitution, and which all the Sarsaparilla in the world cannot remove.

TRIESEMAR Nos. 1, 2, and 3, are prepared in the form of a lozenge, devoid of taste or smell, and can be carried in the waistcoat pocket. Sold in tin cases and divided in separate doses, as administered by Valpeau, Lallemau, Roux, Ricord, &c., &c. Price $3 each, or four cases in one for $9, which saves $3; and in $27 cases, whereby there is a saving of $6.

Special arrangements having been made with the various Express, the nine-dollar cases of the Triesmar, and the larger sizes, will be forwarded by Dr. Barrow, carriage paid, immediately on receiving a remittance, to any part of the world, securely packed, and all dressed according to the instructions of the writer, thus securing to the public genuine European preparations, and effectually protecting them from spurious and worthless imitations. The three-dollar cases sent as usual, but not free of carriage.

NEW-YORK CITY.

Young Men's Christian Association.

The expected developments of the affairs of the New-York Young Men's Christian Association, came out on Monday evening. It was the regular monthly meeting, and the feature of the evening was the report of the Investigating Committee, appointed in February. The usual routine business was first disposed of. A number of new members having been elected, an essay on the "Relations of Merchants and Clerks" was read by Mr. AYWILL, of the Evangelist; and a Committee was appointed to nominate officers for the ensuing year. Two sets of nominations were put in; one headed by the names of GEO. W. CLARKE and URIAH ADAMS being successful. The report of the Investigating Committee was then presented by the Chairman, Mr. AUSTIN ABBOTT. The document was bulky, covering thirty pages. It was circumstantial and spicy. Opening with a narrative of the Committee's melancholy experience in getting possession of the papers and documents in relation to the disputed questions that have agitated the minds of members of the Association, it proceeded to give—first, a statement of the Committee's effort to procure the volumes of the minutes. The Recording Secretary, it appears, declined to hand over these documents, but told the chairman that "they were yonde on the shelf—he could take them if he chose." The books were accordingly taken, but had scarcely come into possession of the Committee when the Secretary, acting under the orders of the Board, sent to demand their return. The Committee considered, first, the Negroes question; second, the action of the Board of Directors in relation to the Library Committee; third, the affairs of the Board generally. They supported the Library Committee in their action in expelling the Negroes, not declaring any opinion as to the character of that sheet, but basing their decision on the ground that it was a matter entirely within the discretion of the Committee. They, however, censure Mr. ENGAR, the chairman of that Committee, for having allowed himself to be drawn into a newspaper controversy, which tended to damage the reputation of the Association for peace, good order and quietness. Next came the question of the action of the Board. The Committee declare that the Association has the power to inquire into the acts of the Board, and the Board is blamed for its action in the matter of Mr. ENGAR and his associates. It should not have acted as it did without the indorsement of the whole Association. Third, came the affairs of the Board generally. Here the Committee found a deal of trouble. The meetings of the Board of Directors were found to have been unruly and disorderly. The natural consequence of a want of harmony in the Board was the entailment of financial embarrassments upon the Association. The Vice-President (as Chairman of the Board) has declined to call special meetings, because the names signed to the call failed to command his respect. The Finance Committee have not reported in writing for a considerable time. Some of the officers of the body have been sued for the rent. The Board has only 12 members—whereas it should have 20. This is illegal, and proceedings may be had to compel the restitution of the whole number. In brief, there is a development of much rottenness. The report of the Committee was very well drawn, a trifle sharp, and was heard with sagacious. It tore away the curtain from the mysteries of the body, counseled reforms of the errors designated, and recommended amendments to the Constitution, increasing the number of Directors from 12 to 16, with the four officers ex officio, making 11 members a quorum. The report was unanimous—signed by AUSTIN ABBOTT, JAMES MITCHELL and GEORGE W. CLARKE. Mr. HOWARD CROSBY rose to criticise the document. He accused the Committee of indulging in sneers against the majority of the Board, and charged the Chairman with reading the document in a sneering manner. Mr. CROSBY having now become personal, he was called to order. The reading of the testimony attached to the report was called for, and, after some opposition in various quarters, Mr. AYWILL was allowed, not without interruption, to proceed with the reading. The report was accepted and the Committee discharged, and towards the small hours the meeting adjourned. A special meeting is called for Monday evening next to consider the questions discussed in the report.

Health Dispensary, Sixth Anniversary.

There was a large gathering of ladies and gentlemen in the large hall of the Health Dispensary last evening, who were there to celebrate the sixth anniversary of that Institution. The meeting was presided over by Mr. JOHN CAMPBELL. The first of the proceedings was the reading of the annual report by Mr. ASHBEL GREEN. From it there appears to have been during the year the following done:

The whole number of patients treated for various diseases by the several physicians attached to the Institution, has been.....20,624
Males.....8,679
Females.....12,945
Of these there were treated at the Dispensary:
Males.....6,941
Females.....9,603
Total.....16,544
And there were treated at their own dwellings:
Males.....1,698
Females.....2,442
Total.....4,140
The number vaccinated is 2,211.
The results of the treatment are as follow:
Sent to Hospital.....170
Died.....226
Cured or under Treatment.....19,481
Number of Prescriptions.....84,552

Dispensary organized in Jan. 1852, and from that time to first of March, 1857, it has relieved 61,581 persons who would otherwise have been unable to supply themselves with medicinal or surgical attendance. If relieved at the hospitals or almshouses, the same attendance would have cost the City over $500,000.

The Treasurer's report was read by Mr. WILLIAM WALKER. It exhibited the following condition of the finances:

Cr.—1856—By bal's on hand last ann'l rept		$1,017 08
1857—Receipts from individuals		1,791 25
Annual grant from City	$1,000
Annual grant State of N. Y.	1,000
Dr. Amount received for rents	1,450—	$4,258 33
1857—To amount pd. for salaries	$2,516 50
To amount pd. for insur'ce	172 50
Medicines	1,069 12
Incidental expenses	212 78
Committee of Supplies	235 00
Coal	196 75
Iron shutters, painting and repairs	1,302 40
Balance, cash on hand	357 02—	$4,258 33

When the reports had been read and accepted, the following resolutions were read by Mr. WILLIAM SAYRE BROWN, and subsequently adopted:

Resolved, That the Dispensary system of this City, its origin, history and working, whether regarded as a sanitary, humane, moral or religious institution, or as a matter of political economy, needs only to be understood to be highly appreciated by the community.

Resolved, That the gratuitous labor, science and skill of the physicians and surgeons connected with the Dispensaries in this City merit a grateful acknowledgment on the part of all our fellow-citizens, irrespective of their means or positions.

After the resolutions had been read, Rev. Mr. CUYLER eloquently addressed the meeting.

He was followed by Gen. MARNER, the President of the Dispensary, who gave a history of its progress and an estimate of its usefulness. When he had concluded, the election of officers took place, with the following result:

MANAGERS.—Frederick E. Mather, John Campbell, Peter Cooper, Wm. Walker, Ashbel Green, Wm. F. Mott, Jr., Henry A. Hurlbut, Peter McMartin, John J. Walker, Nathaniel Hayden, Charles Tracy, Adam W. Spies, Joseph F. Joy, Giles Babcock, John H. Earle, Julius A. Candee, Henry Young, Charles C. Savage, William Post, Charles Rooms, Geo. W. Vasian, Luther G. Clark, Henry G. Marquand, James Low, W. Patterson.

Daily Normal School.

A brief course of Normal instruction in the Daily Normal School, conducted by Prof. CHITTENDEN, was brought to a close yesterday, with an examination before the Normal School Committee, at the Hall of the Board of Education.

It is proposed to introduce "Professional Teaching"—the art of teaching—as a permanent branch of the course of study for the Normal School and Free Academy.

The Proposed New School Law for the City.

A copy of the City School Bill introduced into the Assembly by Mr. VARNUM and originating with Messrs. WILLIAM H. NEILSON and B. R. WINTHROP, has reached us through the favor of Mr. GILBERT, Clerk of the Board of Education.

The proposed amendments to the present school law in this bill are substantially as follows:

1. The existing Board of Education is abolished and a new Board created by making all of the School Commissioners in the City (both as Commissioners, Inspectors and Trustees) members and calling all of them the Board of Education. These constitute the Board of Education, and are in other 44 Commissioners of Schools and 110 Trustees, making a Board of 254 members, which is about 25 more than composes the Common Council, twice as many as Congress and more than doubles the number of members of the Assembly at Albany.

2. This Board is vested with the power to make, by-laws, to control the appropriations and give discretion to the Executive Committee [illegible] by the Board of Trustees, in each Ward electing one of their number annually. This Committee is invested with the powers of the Board of Education, and is to act during the intervals between the meetings of the big Board, which may be held as often as the members may desire. The President is also to be ex-officio a member of this Committee.

3. The Evening Schools are placed under the care and management of the Trustees of the Wards in which they are situated. This arrangement is to go into effect on the 1st day of June next, and the elections are to take place on the second Tuesday of May in each year, commencing with 1858.

There are other minor changes, mainly resulting from the difference in organization.

Fourteenth Ward Schools.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

Your article in relation to the schools of the Fourteenth Ward, in the Times of the 18th inst., is calculated to create an unfavorable impression in the minds of many as to the number of pupils attending the Ward Schools of the Ward. Among other things you say: "No. 5 will accommodate all the pupils attending school in this Ward, and have considerable room to spare." This will be news to the school officers of the Ward, as they have been induced to apply to the Board of Education for authority and funds to effect certain alterations and repairs at Ward Schools Nos. 21 and 22, in order that the pupils may be comfortably seated during school hours. No. 5 will probably seat about one thousand children; the whole number taught in the Ward during the year 1856 is about 6,600; the average attendance for the same term is about 3,000—[illegible] rely that No. 5 could not, under any [illegible] accommodate but one-half of the [illegible] It is even doubtful whether the [illegible] stated, to say nothing of the whole [illegible] which it will be seen that No. 5 [illegible] half of that number.

The Primary departments of Nos. 21 and 22 have more scholars during the Summer months than can conveniently receive instruction. In fact, they are at times over-crowded. No two schools that are located in the Ward could furnish room for the pupils attending school in the Ward, much less one. The article was evidently written under erroneous impressions, and I trust you will have the liberality to make the correction. Yours, H. F. WEST,

Trustee C. S. Fourth Ward.

NEW-YORK, Friday, March 20, '57.

The item complained of should have read as follows: "No. 5 will accommodate all the pupils in the upper part of this Ward." It was a slip of the pen that it did not so read. But the truth remains that the school-houses of the Fourteenth Ward are not filled, while thousands of children are vagrants in the street. There are not too many school-houses in the Ward, perhaps, but the children are not gathered in them. It seems to us that it would be better for the Board of Education to expend its money in parts of the City where the school officers are more successful, and the schools better cared for than upon such barren quarters, where the accommodations are already abundant. Fill your houses first, gentlemen, then come justified into the Board with your demands for more money.

School Matters.

The Twelfth Ward School, No. 46, on One Hundred and Fifty-sixth-street, near Tenth-avenue, was examined on Friday last, by the City Superintendent. The scholarship of the pupils was thoroughly tested, and it was found to be much higher, in both the Girls' and Boys' Departments, than at any previous examination. The Girls' Department is under the charge of Miss MATILDA M. SANDERS. Mr. JOHN C. GRAFF is Principal of the Boys' Department.

NO. FORTY-SEVEN.

The young ladies in the Senior Department of the large Girls' School on Twelfth-street passed a very fine examination yesterday.

Miss WADLEIGH, the Principal, is assisted by Miss LAVINIA M. HOLMAN, teacher of Mathematics; Miss MARY A. RANNEY, who has a class in Latin; Miss SWIFT and Miss ACKERLY, teacher of French. The music, under the direction of Mr. BRIERON, was decidedly excellent. Compositions were read, and Drawings were exhibited, and a crowd of visitors was profitably and agreeably entertained.

Death at a Station-house.

An unknown man, helplessly drunk, was found lying in the mud, in Water, near Gouverneur-street, on Monday night. He was taken to the Seventh Ward Station-house, where next morning he was found dead.

Fires.

IN BAYARD-STREET.

About 2¾ o'clock yesterday morning a fire was discovered in the German apothecary of EDMUND WEBER, No. 18 Bayard, corner of Chrystie-street. It originated among some shelving near the entrance on Chrystie-street, on which was stored, with other things a quantity of matches, and was put out by the hasty application of some dozen pails of water. Damage about $100. Mr. WEBER is insured for $1,800 in the Citizens' Insurance Company. The building is owned by Mrs. MARY MOONEY.

ANOTHER VOICE FROM THE GRAVE.

MR. EDITOR: For four long years I suffered with consumption; I became a mere skeleton; I lost my voice; I had no appetite; I could not sleep at night, nor yet rest by day. I coughed so as to distress all who heard me; I used to throw up great pieces of my ulcerated lungs; I grew weaker day by day; I tried Cod Liver Oil, but it would not rest on my stomach; tar-plasters only gave me more pain but no peace; expectorants and drops with all kinds of names were poured down my unresisting throat. But I only crept nearer the grave, until at last I stood upon its brink; then I swallowed some Iodine Water. The effect was wonderful. Oh! why had I not known it before. In a week I could feel my soul, as it were, creeping back into my body; in a month I walked out; in three I enjoyed my meals; in six I was well—quite well. I now enjoy perfect health, and I owe it entirely to ANDREWS' Liquid Iodine, or pure Iodine Water. MARY WALTERS, New-York, March 18, 1857. Sold at $1 a bottle by ANDREWS & DERMIS, No. 2 Second-avenue, and No. 96½ Broadway; C. H. RING, No. 192 Broadway; MRS. HAYES, Brooklyn, and all druggists.

DEATH AND DISEASE.

DEATH—How comes it, friend, in every shape,
You let so many folks escape?
DISEASE—Dread Sire, I use all means I can,
To abbreviate the life of man;
I dog his footsteps from his birth,
Till he returns to mother earth;
I use all means I used of old
Changes of weather—hot and cold;
I give them colds—I give them pains—
I rack their bones—I fire their veins;
I poison them with rancid bile,
In place of the digestive chyle;
Yet all is useless—nothing kills—
DEATH—How's that?
DISEASE—They all take BRANDRETH'S PILLS.

MARINE MATTERS.

Interesting Clipper Race.

The three clippers, Panama and Wild Pigeon, of New-York, and Florence, of Boston, left Shanghae, China, together, on the 15th of December last, coming out of the river in company, and so continuing through the Straits of Sunda. The Florence and Wild Pigeon were often in sight of each other, but the three parted company off Java Head, and saw nothing more of each other. On the 3d of March the Panama spoke the United States ship Falmouth, hence 35 days for Rio Janeiro, in 1° 20' north latitude, and on the day following the Wild Pigeon was boarded by the officers of that ship, exactly on the equator, and in longitude 94°, the same parallel in which the Panama crossed on the 3d. The officers and crew of the Falmouth were all well, and sent a letter bag by the W. P. The Panama arrived on Friday, the Wild Pigeon on Saturday, and the Florence Monday forenoon, each vessel having experienced about two or three days' delays, from calms and gales of wind.

Making the natural allowance for these adverse circumstances, it would be as difficult to decide which of these ships is the best sailer, as it is sometimes to tell which of two or three fast trotters on the Union Course beats his competitors. The length of passage was 98 days.

Loss of Whaling Bark Henry H. Crapo.

By advices from St. Helena, dated Feb. 19, we have the following: "The British steamer England, which arrived at this port on the 9th of February, from the Cape of Good Hope in 9 days, reports that on the 21st of January last, when in latitude 31° 50' south, and 39° 20' east longitude, having picked up a raft with Capt. BAKER and one seaman, being the sole survivors of the crew of the American whaling bark Henry H. Crapo, which was capsized in a heavy squall on the night of the 19th of January—twenty of the crew supposed to be drowned. Capt. BAKER and the seaman were landed at the Cape of Good Hope. Yours respectfully,

(Signed) CARROLL & KIMBALL."

We give, in our marine columns, the names of 11 vessels reported at St. Helena.

The Africa experienced a continual succession of westerly gales from the time she left Liverpool. During one of these gales the heavy sea washed away considerable of the wood-work of her wheel-houses. Some half dozen pilot-boats, it is stated, were waiting between Montauk Point and Fire Island to board her, but she passed by them all unobserved, until she came up to within eight miles of the light-ship. At 5 o'clock yesterday morning a dense fog set in, shortly after which the pilots on board the Mary Taylor (No. 5) heard the distant rubble of a steamer's wheels. It grew nearer and more distinct, while the dense fog prevented them from seeing the steamer which was evidently steering directly for them, and it being entirely calm they could not move. Fearing that she might run them down, they blew away lustily on their tin horn, which in a short time was heard on board the steamer and answered by the whistle; by this time the Africa was within a hundred yards of the pilot-boat, which at that moment fired a gun, and the steamer stopped her engine and received on board Mr. WATSON, who piloted her to the City. When passing the point of Sandy Hook, the agent of the Associated Press went off in his boat, and received a dispatch of the foreign news, which was telegraphed immediately to the City, and was published over an hour in advance of the steamer's arrival at her dock.

Naval.

The U. S. sloop-of-war Falmouth, EBENEZER FARRAND, Commander, hence 35 days from Rio Janeiro, was spoken March 4, on the equator, lon. 94° W., by the ship Wild Pigeon, Capt. HANSON, from Shanghae. The W. P. brought a letter bag from the Falmouth, and reports officers and crew all well.

The following is a list of her officers:

Ebenezer Farrand, Commander; Geo. W. Rodgers, Lieutenant; W. W. Pollock, Lieutenant; W. McGunnigle, Lieutenant; J. S. Sherrill, Lieutenant; Geo. Brown, Master; C. W. Abbot, Purser; J. J. Abernethy, Surgeon; Wm. W. Page, Assistant-Surgeon; F. M. Ramsay, Assistant-Surgeon; M. C. Campbell, Assistant-Surgeon; W. L. Bradford, Assistant-Surgeon; E. R. Bell, Boatswain; J. C. North, Sail-maker; F. Cunningham, Gunner; J. C. Stinson, Carpenter; Thos. H. Lee, Captain's Clerk; M. R. Moore, Purser's Clerk.

The officers of the United States Storeship Supply reported for service on Monday. She is now taking in her stores, and will be ready to sail for the Brazil Station (her destination) in about a week. Letters, parcels, &c., designed for United States vessels at Rio Janeiro will be forwarded by her, if sent to the Naval Lyceum, Navy Yard, Brooklyn.

The Mississippi is having her masts put in, and she is being rapidly completed for the service for which she is detailed in connection with the laying of the telegraphic cable.

THE NIAGARA.

There was, yesterday, perceptible progress in the work upon the Niagara; an efficient force is engaged in pushing forward the necessary fixtures. Her coal is being taken in, and about one-third of the whole is on board.

The following is a complete list of the officers ordered to this ship, all such lists previously published being inaccurate in many particulars. Our naval friends may rely on this list as being full and correct in all respects:

Captain, William Hudson; Lieutenants, James H. North, Joseph D. Todd, John Guest, Clark H. Wells, Edward Y. McCauley, William D. Whiting and Beverley Kennon; Surgeon, J. G. Palmer; Assistant Surgeons, Arthur M. Lynch and F. W. M. Washington; Purser, J. C. Eldridge; Chief Engineer, William R. Everett; First Assistant Engineers, John Faron and Thomas A. Shock; Second Assistants do., A. M. Kellogg and J. W. Moore; Third Assistants do., Alexander Greer, J. McEwall, George F. Kurtz and Theodore R. Ely; Boatswain, Robert Dixon; Gunner, John Webber; Carpenter, H. P. Leslie; Sailmaker, William B. Fugitt.

The Wabash is hauled off to her anchors, with all her armament on board.

The Vincennes is in the dry dock, being stripped and replanked.

The Dispatch is to have her boilers taken out. Capt. BERRYMAN goes to Newfoundland in the Steamer Vixen, for the telegraphic survey.

TUESDAY, March 24—P. M.

The steamship Africa, from Liverpool Saturday, March 7, arrived at this port at 10 o'clock this forenoon. The financial news from England is less important in character than was looked for. The fall of the Funds on the Ministerial defeat in Parliament was less than ½ ₩ cent., an immediate announcement following that event that the Government of Lord PALMERSTON would not resign, but, after passing some measures of immediate and temporary importance, go to the country on a new election. The Money market was scarcely influenced at all by the political event referred to. Our London correspondents write that although the demand for money had continued active during the week, and more especially immediately preceding the 4th of the month, when a large amount of mercantile bills usually mature, the market generally had been somewhat easier, and in some cases loans had been effected on terms rather in favor of the borrower. There had been no change in the Bank of England rate of discount, and the current rates have been fully maintained in Lombart-street—first-class bills and loans on Government securities 6 ₩ cent. The Bank of England account to 28th February shows the following results, when compared with the previous week:

Public deposits	£7,684,189	Increase £228,899
Other deposits	10,715,611	Increase 1,491,108
Rest	3,719,854	Increase 196,463

On the other side of the account:

Govern't securities	£11,578,889	Increase £43,676
Other securities	19,620,848	Increase 1,664,547
Notes unemployed	5,616,910	Decrease 36,618

The amount of notes in circulation is £18,596,780, being a decrease of £18,485, and the stock of bullion in both departments is £10,343,715, showing a decrease of £60,985, when compared with the preceding return.

In reference to American Securities the circulars and letters advise that rates were more or less influenced by the lower quotations from this side, which went out about the 17th February. We are advised that transactions were had in Michigan Central Railroad Bonds of 1869 at 92 ex coupon, and the shares at 87, New-York Central 6 ₩ cent. Bonds at 80¾; shares at 84 and 83¾. Erie 1875 Bonds at 84. Pennsylvania 1st Mortgage at 89¾. Illinois Central Construction Bonds at 91, 90¾ and 91, and the shares at 82¼, 83, 82¾, 81¾, 82 and 81 premium. A few Michigan Central Sterling Bonds of 1869 at 104. The French Funds are again quoted higher—71.10 for the 3 ₩ cents. The Liverpool Markets are less encouraging than usual for Grain and Flour, and lower prices for American descriptions were being submitted to. Cotton, on the other hand, was firmer, and the better descriptions ⅛d. dearer. The Africa brings $188,000 in Spanish Gold. The Boston return steamer will take about the same amount in California bars.

Our own Money market to-day is without alteration from yesterday's general quotation. There is good employment for the supply of means on the Street, subject to demand loan, as usual the day before the sailing of the steamer. The business in Exchange, to be settled for to-morrow
